Probe Thruway Shootout

By WALTER S. CLARK

Authorities from Ulster and Westchester counties today combined forces with key state police officials in a sweeping investigation of a bizarre fatal exchange of gunfire that punctuated an abortive attempt by three convicts to escape from custody on the State Thruway near the Modena-Plattekill rest area.

A Westchester county deputy sheriff and a convicted robber are dead and two prisoners from Auburn State Prison face murder charges as the climax of the shootout that occurred at about 1:30 p. m. Friday in a sedan in which the prisoners were being transported to White Plains for a court hearing.

A second deputy sheriff and two of the trio were wounded in the shooting melee which sparked one of the most intensive investigations conducted in this area in years.

Dead in the wake of the shooting affray were Deputy Sheriff William Fitzgerald, 63, of 31 Kendall Avenue, North Tarrytown, and Robert A. Bowerman, who was serving a sentence of 13 to 29 years in the Auburn State Prison after a conviction for a New York City robbery and assault.

Examination of the bodies of the two dead men disclosed both had been shot in the chest at close range.

Facing charges of murder and attempts to escape from custody are 23-year-old Gerald McGivern formerly of Taylor Avenue, Bronx, and Charles Culhane, also 23, two of the prisoners.

Wounded in the shootout were Deputy Sheriff Joseph John

Singer, 58, of 35 Beekman Avenue, North Tarrytown, McGivern and Culhane. Singer was reported in satisfactory condition at St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh. He had been wounded in the neck and also suffered lacerations of the face and a possible coronary attack during the scuffle.

Culhane was listed in good condition at St. Francis' Hospital in Poughkeepsie, where he is kept under heavy guard by state troopers and guards from Auburn prison. Culhane was shot in the head.

During the shooting fracas, McGivern was shot in the left elbow. He was taken to the hospital in Newburgh for treatment and later to the Kingston State Police barracks where he was questioned and booked for the murder of Fitzgerald and attempted escape from custody.

Late last night, McGivern, whose face and hands were cut and bruised and his left arm still bleeding from the bullet wound, was arraigned before Ulster Town Justice Arthur A. Reilly. He was informed of his rights to have counsel and a preliminary hearing and was told that if he wanted an attorney one would be assigned.

A plea of innocent was recorded. McGivern said he understood the proceedings.

"I want to have an adjournment for assignment of counsel," McGivern said. After the brief court session, the accused slayer of the deputy sheriff said, "may I have copies of all those papers?" He was told they would be available for him.

State police said Culhane probably would be arraigned on Monday for murder.

Deputies Singer and Fitzgerald were assigned by the Westchester county sheriff earlier in the day to go to Auburn to return the three prisoners to White Plains for a court hearing. The three prisoners were handcuffed and directed to take places in the rear seat of Fitzgerald's 1967 sedan. Singer was driving and Fitzgerald was sitting by his side in front of the privately owned car pulled away from the prison area and headed south on the Thruway.

None of the prisoners gave any indication that they might try to escape from the car, authorities said.

It was shortly before 1:30 p. m. when one of the men said he had to relieve his kidneys, and Singer started to slow the back seat of the car and swung their cuffed hands around the necks of the two deputies, pulling them back.

McGivern, who had been sitting in the middle of the back seat of the car, leaped over the front seat and allegedly grabbed Singer's .38 caliber revolver and simultaneously opened fire. One bullet hit Fitzgerald and he slumped over mortally wounded.

A fierce scuffle ensued as the gun blazed. Police said

Singer retrieved his gun or picked up his partner's revolver and shot the three prisoners. A bullet through the chest killed Bowerman. The other two convicts were wounded.

After the shooting ended, Singer was in possession of the two .38 caliber revolvers that the deputies had with them. Seven shots were fired during the daring escape attempt, five from one gun and two from the other.

Investigator Teelon said that when authorities arrived at the scene of the shooting, the two dead men were slumped over in Fitzgerald's car. McGivern was sprawled out in a ditch along the superhighway, and Culhane was sitting on the ground.

Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser ordered the bodies removed to the county morgue in Kingston Hospital for autopsies.

Shortly after the shootings, Dr. Wilfred Desir of 45 West 132nd Street, New York City, happened along in his car. He stopped to give aid to a wounded man. The Rev. Father Peter McAlone of Fultonville, who was riding on the Thruway, stopped and administered the last rites to Fitzgerald and Bowerman.

Auburn prison authorities said Culhane and McGivern had been sentenced to 7½ to 10 and 10 to 20 years respectively in connection with an abortive holdup of a Pelham Manor gas station in December, 1966, in which two police men and Culhane were slightly wounded.

Bowerman was in prison under sentence after the New York City conviction. The Westchester hearing scheduled for yesterday afternoon was to have been on a vider and shot the three prisoners. A bullet through the chest killed Bowerman. The other two convicts were wounded.

Westchester district attorney's office. Assistant District Attorney Anthony Morosco was preparing to go into County Court on Monday to deny that the threats were made. McGivern and Bowerman, a cellmate of Culhane, were to have been witnesses at the hearing.

Fitzgerald had been a member of the Westchester sheriff's department for 23 years. A bachelor, he lived in North Tarrytown. Singer has been with the department for 10 years.

As yet it has not been explained why the two deputies made the trip in a private car instead of taking a sheriff's patrol car.

The investigation was directed by Major J. W. Monahan, commander of Troop F, Major George Lake, Captain Carl Wichman, Captain C. R. Emden of the BCI, Senior Investigators Michael Lisman and Teelon and other troopers of the area.

Allies Kill 158 in Massive Assault

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces, supported by tanks and naval gunfire, thrust into the southern half of the demilitarized zone Friday and reported killing 158 enemy soldiers in heavily fortified positions.

Allied casualties in the DMZ assault were four killed and 46 wounded, spokesmen said. All of the dead and about half the wounded were South Vietnamese.

Military spokesmen said the assault was a spoiling action designed to blunt an expected drive south by two North Vietnamese divisions. It also was meant to relieve enemy pressure on allied outposts in the northern provinces of South Vietnam.

The DMZ, which extends about three miles on each side of the North-South Vietnamese border, was created at the Geneva Convention in 1954 to serve as a neutral buffer zone. But the North Vietnamese have used it as a sanctuary for their troops menacing northern allied outposts.

Friday's assault was the fourth major allied drive into the South Vietnamese half of the zone, although there have been a number of reconnaissance patrols into the area.

The first announced allied thrust into the zone came in May 1967, when U.S. Marines moved in for five days.

The last thrust into the DMZ came a month ago when U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese infantrymen backed by armored columns killed 234 North Vietnamese troops in the same general area.

Maj. Gen. Keith L. Ware, a draftee who won the Medal of Honor and became commander of the 1st Infantry Division, was killed in a helicopter crash. Story on page 14.

A U. S. spokesman said Friday's operation marked the first time "a combined force like this with Army, Marines and South Vietnamese and the joint supporting fires" had made such an assault.

The South Vietnamese spearheaded the assault and by nightfall, after 14 hours of fighting, the allied forces had returned to base camps just inside South Vietnam. The enemy bunkers were just south of the Ben Hai River and about three miles northeast of the allied outpost of Gio Linh.

The swift push into the DMZ was preceded by saturation bombing raids. U.S. B-52s poured more than half a million tons of explosives on the enemy's positions and artillery sites before the task force moved in.

In other fighting, allied base camps were hit with small enemy assaults and mortar fire in a series of attacks in the area between Loc Ninh and Tay Ninh.

In the air, American B-52 bombers hit enemy installations along the Cambodian border, in the far north and in the central highlands. Some 1.3 million pounds of bombs were dropped Friday night and this morning, most of them in the area around Tay Ninh.

In other actions, 88 enemy soldiers were reported killed by soldiers of the U.S. 11th Light Infantry Brigade and South Vietnamese troops in two separate battles along the coastal plains midway between Saigon and the DMZ. Two U.S. soldiers were reported killed and 22 wounded. Government casualties were reported light.

Paratroopers from the U.S. 101st Airborne Division killed 26 enemy soldiers and captured another 19 without suffering a single casualty in a series of small skirmishes 10 miles east of the old imperial capital of Hue.

Three Killed in Area Auto Accidents

By SHANE CROSBY

A Long Island woman and her 14-year-old granddaughter were killed and seven persons injured Friday evening when three cars collided on the Taconic State Parkway in the Town of Clinton.

In a separate accident, William G. Williamson, of Coxsack, died the same evening the northbound lane of the parkway.

State police reported that Paul St. Pierre was driving in the wrong direction on the divided roadway about 10:50 p. m. One half mile south of Nine Partners Road, Dutchess County, when the crash took place. He was arrested by troopers for driving while intoxicated and driving in the wrong direction.

A brother and a sister of the dead girl were injured in the collision along with three 11-year-old youngsters, all passengers in a car driven by Walter Levine, 37, of Brooklyn. Marie Denton, 52, of Huntington Station, was injured in the Lillard vehicle, and St. Pierre was also hospitalized with injuries.

Two ambulances were used to remove the dead and injured from the scene of the accident.

When his car crashed into an embankment on Rt. 9W, near Ravens in Greene County, Williamson was alone in his car at the time of the accident.

The Long Island woman, Mrs. G. Demm Lillard, 58, of Huntington Station, and her granddaughter, Bonnie Brush, of Centerport, died when the car fractured hip and numerous cuts.

The injured were taken to Vassar Hospital for treatment.

Injured were James Brush,

11, fractured nose; his sister,

Sharon, also 11, cuts of the face reports, his car swerved right and hands; the Denton woman, then left and over the center-fractured wrist and numerous strip, narrowly missing a car cuts; James Behan, 11, of in the northbound lane before Brooklyn, facial cuts; Charles Wolfson, 11, of Brooklyn, facial cuts; Mitchell Kleinman, 11, nounced dead on arrival at Al-Centerport, died when the car fractured hip and numerous cuts.

Police said he died of extensive brain damage. He was alone in the vehicle at the time his car went out of control while of the crash. Leeds Trooper heading south on 9W about 5:10 p. m. According to state police accident.

Shanker May Face More Days in Jail

NEW YORK (UPI)—The city is moving to jail the head of the 55,000-member teachers union for calling the second strike of the fledgling school year that virtually closed the nation's largest school system and resulted in scuffling between parents and teachers at a dozen schools.

State Supreme Court Justice Harry B. Frank signed an order at the request of city attorneys directing Albert Shanker, president of the United Federation of Teachers (UFT), to show cause why he should not be jailed for criminal contempt of a court order barring a strike by the UFT.

Shanker called the strikes over job security for teachers under the city's plan to decentralize control of schools. Shanker served a 15-day sentence last year and the UFT was fined $150,000 for a 14-day strike for higher pay.

Only 2,907 of the city's 60,000 teachers showed up for classes Friday and outbreaks of scuffling occurred at a dozen schools when they tried to pass UFT picket lines. Parents supporting the teachers who wanted to work became involved at some schools. Ten persons were arrested and two policemen injured.

Many of them were in the eight-school Ocean-Hill-Brownsville district in Brooklyn, a pilot project in the decentralization program.

The UFT called the strike for school opening Monday when the local governing board of the district, predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican, refused an order from the city Board of Education to reinstate 10 teachers fired last spring.

Classes resumed on Wednesday and Thursday when it appeared the Ocean Hill-Brownsville board would readmit the teachers. But Shanker and the UFT's 51-member board ordered a resumption of the strike Friday when the teachers, along with more than 100 who had boycotted district schools in support of them, were barred from schools by local officials and angry parents.

France Makes Changes

PARIS (AP)—France has announced major reforms of its tradition-bound university system in a move viewed as a concession to demands by students who touched off France's paralyzing strike wave last spring.

French Education Minister Edgar Faure, who was chosen by President Charles de Gaulle to take over the ministry at the height of the June disorders, outlined the changes Friday night.

Mobilization on Agenda

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said that "total mobilization" for war is the agenda of the urgent party congress meeting today in the Egyptian capital.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser was to open the assembly of the ruling Arab Socialist Union ASU, Egypt's only political party.

Al Ahram, which often prints government views that are not officially announced, said Nasser would discuss with the party matters "directly related to a general massing and total mobilization" of Arab military forces to liberate lands occupied by Israel since June, 1967.

Interfaith Seminars To Start in Dutchess

A program of 10 bi-weekly discussion-seminars will be presented to the adult public of the Red Hook-Rhinebeck area by 15 laymen representing all the Christian Churches of Red Hook. The program is supported by the Red Hook Ministerium.

The bi-weekly meetings will be held Friday evenings, beginning Sept. 20, at St. Joseph's Novitiate, Barrytown, off Route 9G, from 7:45 to 10:30.

The purpose of the program is to provide the Christian adults of the area with a chance to investigate the meaning of the faith for modern American life.

Each meeting will have as its format a presentation by a guest lecturer or panel followed by a question and answer period, small group discussions and refreshments.

The calendar of topics which will be discussed is as follows:

Sept. 20, Commandment or Commandments: How Does a Christian Adult Understand Them Today? October 4, A Pastor's View of the Ten Commandments; October 18, Sacraments: What Meaning Do They Have in the Daily Life of the Ordinary Christian Adult? November 1, The Churches' Sacrament: A Pastor's View of Christ's Sacraments; November 15, The Creed: What Do We Really Believe and How Does It Affect Our Lives Today? November 29, Interpreting Christ's Mind for Today from the Scriptures; December 13, How to Read the Essential Scriptures Profitably; January 3, The Early Church: A Message and Model for Today; January 17, The Christian Church and the Christian Churches Today; Thursday, January 30, Jews and Christians: A Meeting of Minds and Men.

Committee Planners—Interfaith committee members met weekly during the summer to organize and plan the program. Representing the Reformed Church on the committee are Herbert Petz, Mrs. Hilda Aiken and Mrs. Ralph Hardeman. The Episcopalians are represented by Mrs. Vernon Lamson and Mrs. Louis Dorsey. Catholics on the committee are William Taylor, Clement Gloyenka and Frank Salacka.

The Methodist representatives are Frederick Brammer, Howard Sargent and Richard Bickerton. Lutherans on the committee are Kalman Hood, Christopher Gindorf and Robert Olsen. The committee is chaired by Brother Mark Lull, F.S.C., of St. Joseph's.

Evict County Building Tenants Because Ulster Needs the Room

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The cancellation of existing leases and occupancy by non-county agencies of the sixth floor of the County Office Building was affected by a unanimously adopted resolution introduced at the Thursday night session of the County Legislature.

The resolution filed by the Building Committee of the Legislature sought cancellation of existing leases for the State Office of Economic Opportunity, Ulster County Community Action Committee and the Ulster County Soil and Water Conservation District, and other federal agencies under the district.

The measure stated that the space is needed for expansion of some county departments after Jan. 1.

The Community Action Committee suffered an additional setback when a resolution releasing $15,000 for operational costs was withdrawn by the sponsor, Legislator Richard D. Nace, R-2nd District. No explanation was offered. Also withdrawn was a resolution of the Legislature noted that experience has indicated the possibility of a 300 copies being sufficient for Homemaker Service Program on recommendation of the Social Services Committee.

A proposal by Legislator Joseph Martorana, R-9th District, noted that school tax bills continue to show increases despite adopted state aid. The resolution asks the governor and leaders of the State Legislature to study the feasibility of substituting or supplementing the present real estate tax basis for raising school taxes with other more broader bases of taxation. Copies were directed to be sent to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and local representatives in the Senate and Assembly. The measure was adopted unanimously following the defeat of an amendment offered by Brian R. White, R-9th District, which asked referral to the Tax Base Study Committee.

The vote on the amendment was 23 to 9 against referral.

The Legislators approved a proposal by Frank Muller, R-10th District to cut down the number of copies of the 1967 Legislative Proceedings of the Board of Supervisors to be printed from 500 to 300. The resolution noted that experience has indicated the possibility of a 300 copies being sufficient for

Clark Labels Fortas Opponents Reactionary

By ROY MCGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark says some senators blocking Abe Fortas' elevation to chief justice are trying to "undo the great progress" made in civil rights over the last several years.

He flatly accused the lawmakers opposing Fortas of prejudice and partisan politics in preventing the nomination by President Johnson from going to the Senate floor.

In a blistering speech to the Federal Bar Association, a group of government lawyers, Clark said Friday night: "This is a constitutional crisis. At stake is our system of government: Separation of powers; and independent and uninhibited judiciary."

"Which way will we go?" He charged there are two dominant purposes for which opponents seek to defeat the nomination: "Politics and a desire to roll back civil rights."

"The Senate has a constitutional duty to vote on the confirmation of Abe Fortas."

He added that it is obvious "that much opposition to this nomination is motivated by a desire to undo the great progress made in civil rights these past few years."

Fortas was attacked Friday on other grounds as opponents kept up their opposition in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

After Dean B. J. Tenny of American University's Law School told the committee Fortas was paid $15,000 to deliver nine law school lectures this summer, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., charged that it was improper for a Supreme Court justice to accept payment for outside work.

Tenny, however, vigorously supported Fortas' nomination, said it was not unusual for justices to give university lectures and added he hoped Fortas would continue the lectures even as chief justice.

Fortas, in a letter to the judiciary committee, declined an invitation to appear again before the panel. In a previous appearance, unprecedented for a nominee for chief justice, he underwent withering interrogation on his views.

Area Church Collects Items For New School

The First Baptist Church of Rhinebeck is currently collecting items to aid the Rev. and Mrs. Dale Adams in establishing a mission school in Jamaica.

School supplies, clothing and furnishings are being sought. Items may be brought to the church. Miss Emilie Schultz may be contacted for further information and a list of articles needed.

Trustees of the church recently purchased a 60-passenger school bus for transportation of children to various youth activities of the church. Released time classes in Rhinebeck and Red Hook will begin shortly. Registration slips are available at the church.

Legion Aux. Opens Season

The regular meeting of the Woodstock American Legion Auxiliary 1026 was held Tuesday evening at the American Legion Hall with Mrs. Laura Vogel, president, presiding.

The third district fall conference will be held in Troy on Friday, Oct. 18. It was voted to send the president, membership chairman, child welfare chairman, rehabilitation chairman and the treasurer to this conference with expenses paid.

A citation was given to the unit for outstanding achievement in the field of coupons.

Anyone wishing to borrow loan closet equipment, may contact Mrs. Magda Moseman or Mrs. Jean Baumgarten.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by Mrs. Magda Moseman and Mrs. Ethel Hasbrouck.

officials for permission to have the Indians enter the judges stand with a muffled drum beat, and to be allowed to then have its members stand with heads bowed for one minute as a tribute to the memory of one of their former members, Lance Corporal Peter M. Donovan, killed in Vietnam on Aug. 29. Permission was granted, and the memorial carried out by the Indians, just prior to their competing.

After having won just one week before, the Indians' performance was good enough to win the Hudson Valley Association Championship with a score of 91. They also won the trophy for "Best Appearing Corps" with a score of 93.

Two of the Indians entered in Individual Bugle, and won first and second place. William Gemmell played the French Horn Bugle and won with a score of 92.50, and Raymond DuBois took second place playing the contra-bass bugle with a score of 90.17. A total of 13 corps entered this contest.

Milk Prices Going Up Again

Bulk milk prices in the New York-New Jersey marketing area are slated to go up .24 cents a hundredweight effective Sept. 15.

The price hike for wholesale milk is the third boost ordered this year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Marketing Administrator. Last year's price per hundredweight was 6.11. The new increase will bring the hundredweight price to 6.73.

The effect on the retail market has not been ascertained as yet but will in all probability lead to increase in cost to the consumer.

School Food Meeting

The first regular meeting of the Ulster County School Food Service Association for the 1968-69 school year will be held Tuesday, Sept. 17, at 4 p. m., in the new Miller School, on Boice's Lane in Kingston.

On the program will be a short business meeting, a demonstration by Albany Frosted Foods, and a buffet supper.

Following the service, the LCW will have a coffee hour with Mrs. William Warneke as hostess.

Jaycees Host Senior Citizens

Good food and fellowship were the order of the day at the annual Oldtimers Picnic held recently. The event is held each year by the Woodstock Jaycees in order to give senior citizens a chance for a leisurely ride around Woodstock and an afternoon consisting of a picnic and entertainment.

Attending the picnic were approximately 28 residents of the Lake Hill Rest Home and Olsen's Home for Senior Citizens also in Lake Hill.

The picnic began with a one-hour bus ride around the Woodstock area followed by a picnic lunch at the Lake Hill Rest Home. Then entertainment was provided by the Salvation Army Band and the Children's Choir of Kingston.

Christian Life And Work Center Opening Sept. 22

The week of Sept. 22-29 is to be marked with three congregational events at Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church. The new Christian Life and Work Center is to be dedicated at a service at 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 22 with Junior and Senior choirs singing, former pastors and other church dignitaries in attendance and a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Winfield Burggraaf. Fellowship hour and guided tours of the new facilities will follow the service.

The new center is a colonial structure in harmony with the old church, providing a "nerve center": study, office, library and church parlor, with 12 rooms, available for classroom use, Albert E. Milliken was the architect.

Agapae Lodge Will Elect New Officers

The regular meeting of Agapae Rebekah Lodge 623 was held at the Bearsville Lodge Hall on Wednesday evening with Mrs. Ellen Essig, noble grand, presiding.

Regular business was transacted and members having birthdays in July, August and September were honored with a gift and a birthday cake.

At the next meeting on Sept. 18, there will be election of officers. Also, secret pals for the past year will be revealed. All members are requested to attend.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by Mrs. Daisy Montgomery, Mrs. Elsie Ertz and Miss Evelyn Stone.

Teamster Leader Asks Election by T-Way Workers

A call for immediate collective bargaining election for State Thruway employees was issued Friday by Theodore G. Daley, secretary-treasurer of Tamsters Local 445.

The call for action was issued to Structural Steel and Bridge Painters Local 806, Council 50, AFSCME and the Civil Service Employees Association. The Teamster leader said he is willing to have the clerical employees included in the bargaining unit in accordance with the decision of the Public Employment Relations Board to have the clerical workers included with toll and maintenance workers.

Daley urged an immediate election to beat the budget submission date of the Thruway Authority. The date is January 1.

Local Death Record

Harry L. Lee

Harry L. Lee of Van Kleek Lane, Sunrise Park, died at Kingston Hospital Friday evening. Mr. Lee was born at Hunter and had been a resident of Kingston for many years. He was a son of David and Ida Dibble Lee. Mr. Lee was a well-known carpenter in the Kingston area and had been employed for 34 years as a ship carpenter by the Cornell Steamboat Co. and later at the Hildebrand Shipyard. He retired in 1957. Mr. Lee was a member of the Carpenters Union, Local 1175. He is survived by his wife, the former Josephine Berryann; three daughters, Mrs. John (Ella) Lowe of Kingston, Mrs. Francis (Anna) Smith of Lake Katrine, and Mrs. Eugene (Virginia) Reis of Connelly; two sons, George Lee of Rivoton, N. J., and William Lee of Kingston; two brothers, Arthur and Frank Lee, both of Gilboa. Ten grandchildren, a great-grandchild and several nieces and nephews also survive. Funeral will be held at the Jensen and Deegan Funeral Home Inc., 15 Downs Street, on Monday at 2 p. m. with the Rev. William R. Peckham officiating. Burial in Wiltwyck Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home today 7 to 9 p. m. and Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m.

Three persons were taken to Benedictine Hospital shortly after 5 a. m. today by Saugerties Ambulance Service when the car they were riding in with two others went out of control and overturned on Pebbles Road, Saugerties. Injured in the one car accident were John McMarra, of Hempstead, Long Island; Barbara Cardinale, Thomas Howard, Stanley Terwilliger and William Pretsch, all of Kingston.

Pretsch, the driver of the vehicle, was cited by Kingston Troopers for using imprudent speed. None were seriously injured in the crash.

Indians Corps Gains Top Spot

The Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps traveled to New Fairfield, Conn. to enter the Hudson Valley Drum Corps Association Annual Field Day Competition. Upon registering, Director Ralph Shapiro asked the contest

officials for permission to have the Indians enter the judges stand with a muffled drum beat, and to be allowed to then have its members stand with heads bowed for one minute as a tribute to the memory of one of their former members, Lance Corporal Peter M. Donovan, killed in Vietnam on Aug. 29. Permission was granted, and the memorial carried out by the Indians, just prior to their competing.

After having won just one week before, the Indians' performance was good enough to win the Hudson Valley Association Championship with a score of 91. They also won the trophy for "Best Appearing Corps" with a score of 93.

Two of the Indians entered in Individual Bugle, and won first and second place. William Gemmell played the French Horn Bugle and won with a score of 92.50, and Raymond DuBois took second place playing the contra-bass bugle with a score of 90.17. A total of 13 corps entered this contest.

Area Church Collects Items For New School

The First Baptist Church of Rhinebeck is currently collecting items to aid the Rev. and Mrs. Dale Adams in establishing a mission school in Jamaica.

School supplies, clothing and furnishings are being sought. Items may be brought to the church. Miss Emilie Schultz may be contacted for further information and a list of articles needed.

Trustees of the church recently purchased a 60-passenger school bus for transportation of children to various youth activities of the church. Released time classes in Rhinebeck and Red Hook will begin shortly. Registration slips are available at the church.

Legion Aux. Opens Season

The regular meeting of the Woodstock American Legion Auxiliary 1026 was held Tuesday evening at the American Legion Hall with Mrs. Laura Vogel, president, presiding.

The third district fall conference will be held in Troy on Friday, Oct. 18. It was voted to send the president, membership chairman, child welfare chairman, rehabilitation chairman and the treasurer to this conference with expenses paid.

A citation was given to the unit for outstanding achievement in the field of coupons.

Anyone wishing to borrow loan closet equipment, may contact Mrs. Magda Moseman or Mrs. Jean Baumgarten.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by Mrs. Magda Moseman and Mrs. Ethel Hasbrouck.

Milk Prices Going Up Again

Bulk milk prices in the New York-New Jersey marketing area are slated to go up .24 cents a hundredweight effective Sept. 15.

The price hike for wholesale milk is the third boost ordered this year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Marketing Administrator. Last year's price per hundredweight was 6.11. The new increase will bring the hundredweight price to 6.73.

The effect on the retail market has not been ascertained as yet but will in all probability lead to increase in cost to the consumer.

School Food Meeting

The first regular meeting of the Ulster County School Food Service Association for the 1968-69 school year will be held Tuesday, Sept. 17, at 4 p. m., in the new Miller School, on Boice's Lane in Kingston.

On the program will be a short business meeting, a demonstration by Albany Frosted Foods, and a buffet supper.

Evict County Building Tenants Because Ulster Needs the Room

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The cancellation of existing leases and occupancy by non-county agencies of the sixth floor of the County Office Building was affected by a unanimously adopted resolution introduced at the Thursday night session of the County Legislature.

The resolution filed by the Building Committee of the Legislature sought cancellation of existing leases for the State Office of Economic Opportunity, Ulster County Community Action Committee and the Ulster County Soil and Water Conservation District, and other federal agencies under the district.

The measure stated that the space is needed for expansion of some county departments after Jan. 1.

The Community Action Committee suffered an additional setback when a resolution releasing $15,000 for operational costs was withdrawn by the sponsor, Legislator Richard D. Nace, R-2nd District. No explanation was offered. Also withdrawn was a resolution offered by Majority Leader Douglas V. Dye, R-2nd District, calling for the establishment of a Homemaker Service Program on recommendation of the Social Services Committee.

A proposal by Legislator Joseph Martorano, R-9th District, noted that school tax bills continue to show increases despite added state aid. The resolution asks the governor and leaders of the State Legislature to study the feasibility of substituting or supplementing the present real estate tax basis for raising school taxes with other more broader bases of taxation. Copies were directed to be sent to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and local representatives in the Senate and Assembly. The measure was adopted unanimously following the defeat of an amendment offered by Brian R. White, R-9th District, which asked referral to the Tax Base Study Committee.

The vote on the amendment was 23 to 9 against referral.

The Legislature approved a proposal by Frank Muller, R-10th District to cut down the number of copies of the 1967 Legislative Proceedings of the Board of Supervisors to be printed from 500 to 300. The resolution noted that experience has indicated the possibility of a 300 copies being sufficient for distribution to appropriate town, county and state offices, libraries and interested persons.

A measure introduced by Eugene K. Noe, R-9th District in behalf of the Industrial Development Committee approved title changes of two positions in the Ulster County Planning Board. The title of principal planner was abolished and a new title, senior planner was established in its place at the same salary and experience level. The title of senior planner at level 16 was abolished and a new title, planner at the G-16 level was established.

More than 40 persons attended as observers included the wives of the 2nd District legislators and wife of the chairman, Peter J. Savago. All legislators answered roll call except John C. Sangaline, R-Kingston.

The session was adjourned in memory of Capt. Robert G. Bull II, 29-year-old son of Dr. Bull II, George Bull of Marlboro, who was shot down in air action Aug. 27 in DuLap, South Vietnam. Capt. Bull was flying a mission of resupply on a twin-engine C-78 Caribou transport with two other members of his crew. The plane was shot down by what was probably ground fire. The plane crashed and exploded on impact, killing all three.

Capt. Bull is survived by his wife, the former Virginia Ford, and an eight-month-old son, Fred William, both of Salt Lake City, Utah; his parents of Marlboro; two sisters, Miss Marilyn Bull of Los Angeles and Miss Laura Lee Bull of Marlboro.

A native of White Plains, he attended Marlboro schools and was active in Boy Scouting. He was a member of the Class of 1957 at Marlboro Central High School. Capt. Bull received an appointment to the U. S. Air Force Academy, Denver, Colo., and graduated in 1961. He had been serving in Vietnam for the past several months.

Slide Program On India Today At First Baptist

Gregory F. Johnson will present color slides of his summer in India to the First Baptist Church School at 9:45 a. m. Sunday.

Johnson is assistant professor at the Ulster County Community College. He is a veteran of 20 years in the Navy and had served for two years in the Peace Corps in India near Bombay. Johnson spent the past summer in Madras, India, under the auspices of the National Science Foundation, training Polytechnic teachers in Electronics.

The event is sponsored by the board of missions of the First Baptist Church.

Jaycees Host Senior Citizens

Good food and fellowship were the order of the day at the annual Oldtimers Picnic held recently. The event is held each year by the Woodstock Jaycees in order to give senior citizens a chance for a leisurely ride around Woodstock and an afternoon consisting of a picnic and entertainment.

Attending the picnic were approximately 28 residents of the Lake Hill Rest Home and Olsen's Home for Senior Citizens also in Lake Hill.

The picnic began with a one-hour bus ride around the Woodstock area followed by a picnic lunch at the Lake Hill Rest Home. Then entertainment was provided by the Salvation Army Band and the Children's Choir of Kingston.

Church school teachers will be installed during the morning worship services. During the 11 a. m. service Dawn Anne McNamara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McNamara, will be received into the church through the sacrament of Holy Baptism. Following the service, the LCW will have a coffee hour with Mrs. William Warneke as hostess.

Christian Life And Work Center Opening Sept. 22

The week of Sept. 22-29 is to be marked with three congregational events at Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church. The new Christian Life and Work Center is to be dedicated at a service at 4 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 22 with Junior and Senior choirs singing, former pastors and other church dignitaries in attendance and a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Winfield Burggraaf. Fellowship hour and guided tours of the new facilities will follow the service.

The new center is a colonial structure in harmony with the old church, providing a "nerve center": study, office, library and church parlor, with 12 rooms available for classroom use. Albert E. Milliken was the architect.

Agapae Lodge Will Elect New Officers

The regular meeting of Agapae Rebekah Lodge 623 was held at the Bearsville Lodge Hall on Wednesday evening with Mrs. Ellen Essig, noble grand, presiding.

Regular business was transacted and members having birthdays in July, August and September were honored with a gift and a birthday cake.

At the next meeting on Sept. 18, there will be election of officers. Also, secret pals for the past year will be revealed. All members are requested to attend.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by Mrs. Daisy Montgomery, Mrs. Elsie Ertz and Miss Evelyn Stone.

Fourth Grade Parents Meet

Parents of fourth grade students of the Woodstock School have been invited to an orientation meeting on Monday, Sept. 16, at 9:30 a. m. The introduction of the departmental classes for the major school subjects at the fourth grade level will be discussed.

Clark Labels Fortas Opponents Reactionary

By ROY MCGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark says some senators blocking Abe Fortas' elevation to chief justice are trying to "undo the great progress" made in civil rights over the last several years.

He flatly accused the lawmakers opposing Fortas of prejudice and partisan politics in preventing the nomination by President Johnson from going to the Senate floor.

In a blistering speech to the Federal Bar Association, a group of government lawyers, Clark said Friday night: "This is a constitutional crisis. At stake is our system of government: Separation of powers; and independent and uninhibited judiciary."

"Which way will we go?"

He charged there are two dominant purposes for which opponents seek to defeat the nomination: "Politics and a desire to roll back civil rights."

"The Senate has a constitutional duty to vote on the confirmation of Abe Fortas."

He added that it is obvious "that much opposition to this nomination is motivated by a desire to undo the great progress made in civil rights these past few years."

Fortas was attacked Friday on other grounds as opponents kept up their opposition in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

After Dean B. J. Tenney of American University's Law School told the committee Fortas was paid $15,000 to deliver nine law school lectures this summer, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., charged that it was improper for a Supreme Court justice to accept payment for outside work.

Tenney, however, vigorously supported Fortas' nomination, said it was not unusual for justices to give university lectures and added he hoped the Fortas would continue the lectures even as chief justice.

Fortas, in a letter to the judiciary committee, declined an invitation to appear again before the panel. In a previous appearance, unprecedented for a nominee for chief justice, he underwent withering interrogation on his views.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 14, 1968

Solving Nation's Ills

For the first time in a decade, people in this country believe that the Republican party is better able to solve the nation's ills. The turn came last November, and the Republicans have maintained a lead ever since, with definite gains in July and August, as shown by the latest Gallup poll.

By a margin of two to one, the Republican party is credited with being able to keep the country out of a third world war. By the same margin, it would be able to keep prices down, people believe. And for the first time in 12 years, the Republicans are given the same vote of confidence as the Democrats with regard to being the party able to keep the country prosperous.

These are all most significant changes in the mood of the American people. Perhaps we should not be surprised at the belief that the Republicans can better keep us out of world war three, since all the wars in this century—the two world wars and the Korean and Vietnam wars—have occurred during Administrations of Democratic Presidents. Yet from Wilson, elected on the plank "He kept us out of War," only to plunge us into the first world war in 1917, to Johnson, the wartime Presidents all contended they went to war to preserve the peace. Apparently, the people are not buying that anymore.

Just as surprising are the votes on cost of living and prosperity. Democratic Presidents have campaigned on the claim "You've never had it so good," but these people think either party can maintain prosperity and, even, that the Republicans can do it and keep down the cost of living, too. Apparently, the new economics have not made as much headway as some people believed.

Wall Street Less Jittery

Time was when the only thing that could be counted on for certain at a time of national or international uncertainty was that Wall Street would go into a spasm.

First there would be a wild wave of emotional selling of stock and plummeting prices following bad news, then a return wave of equally feverish buying and bidding up.

It has happened in every one of 17 unexpected crises in the past 70 years, beginning with the sinking of the battleship Maine in 1898, says the Wall Street Journal.

It still happens, but there is a difference: The buying and selling waves are now much shorter-lived.

Consider the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia. Selling triggered by that crisis lasted only an hour drove the Dow-Jones industrial average down less than 0.4 per cent. In just the first hour of trading the next day, the average had climbed higher than it had been before.

Compare this with what happened after the sinking of the Lusitania in 1915. The selling wave battered the market for 32 trading days. The D-J average dropped 11 per cent. It took 16 trading days for the market to recover.

Either Wall Street is becoming sophisticated or cynical or, as some believe, better communications and reporting techniques are helping to contain panic after a sudden crisis.

Whatever the reason, if you want to make money out of a calamity, advises the Journal, you have to be quick these days.

Changes in economic policy would have more effect on unemployment than manpower training, a symposium on American policy toward poverty at George Washington University, Washington, D. C., was told. The point was that manpower training without demand for new jobs would only mean a "better trained unemployed work force," only there are demands and manpower shortages and training programs should and can seek them out and fill them.

When Congress resumed work after the conventions in 1964, final adjournment came October 3. That is the latest date which leaders give themselves to wind up the current session. After that, campaigning members will simply not be available to make a quorum that can take any action. The fate of the Johnson legislative program must be settled in one remaining month.

Henry J. Taylor Says Social Security Taxes

The great not-what-it-looks-like mirage known as Social Security is another topic sure to be ignored by the Washington windbag boys in this election campaign. But aren't they ever to be held to any accounting?

They talk. We pay — and pay double. We pay first in the Social Security taxes which have been increased nearly twice as much as the benefits payable from them, and then we are double-hit by the Great Society inflation. What the workingman puts in buys less and less in terms of Social Security when he and his family need it.

The cash deducted from your pay for so-called Social Security is merely shoveled into the U. S. Treasury like other taxes. It disappears there. The Washington Robin Hoods of the Red Ink have borrowed every penny of the Social Security reserve and spent it.

Your given cash is replaced with government bonds, the government IOU's. Like the public gold in Fort Knox, your cash is gone with the wind.

The Social Security tax rate, shared equally by employers and employees, has increased nearly 300 percent since 1949. With its added costs the increases could be as great as 435 percent by 1973. Medicare alone now costs more than twice the estimate originally stated to the voters. But who would know it?

The workingman earning $7,500 this year is hit for $342.20. Next year, it will be $374.20. By 1987 it will be $460.20. And with the employer's matching payment $920.40 will be the cost.

The Tax Foundation, Inc., a respected independent research organization, finds that Washington's incredible $186 billion budget represents $940 for every man, woman and child in the United States. A man with a wife and two children to raise and feed will be startled to know that his share of this year's budget is about $4,700. That is $391 per month, $12.37 per day. Toward this annual Federal, state and local taxes now equal $3,350 for each American family.

Yet this same hard-pressed breadwinner will find as early as 1971 — just three years from now — that he and his employers together will be paying more Social Security tax than he will be paying Federal income tax.

Now comes the second cost. When the Social Security payer comes to get his money back what can he buy with it? He sends Washington his dollars and gets back dollarettes.

The Great Society inflation is like a fungus disease spreading outward. And we're paying for this great bamboozle, each of us, right out of our hides.

The National Industrial Conference Board found (June 24, 1968) that it now requires a $14,000-a-year salary to give a family of four the purchasing power it had on a $5,000 salary in 1939. A $5,000-a-year man with a wife and two children had $4,941 to spend after taxes. Today he needs an income of $14,282 to net the same amount.

Taxes draw off $2,083 and inflation has chipped away a full $7,258 — nearly 50 per cent more than the total $5,000 he had before. What will today's payer need by the time he gets back to his Social Security?

Based on the 1939 dollar, we have a dollar already worth only 42 cents. The Great Society inflation is knocking down the value of our dollars at a rate one-third faster than even last year. At today's rate of decline we will have a 25-cent dollar within exactly eight years.

There are several causes of the inflation, including the leap-frogging of wages and prices, but the chief inflationary pressure is the mishandling of our money here and abroad by our own government itself.

At long last we get this confession from the horse's mouth. On May 17 Arthur Okun, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, conceded that the government itself has been "the major cause of the inflation" because it has poured so much deficit money into the economy by Washington's overspending.

This is the first time in all these years that any Washington Robin Hood of the Red Ink has made officially so open an admission. But if the government continues to treat the taxpayer public as a totally stupid species it has some shattering surprises ahead.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

There is an abhorrent current expression: "Tell it like it is." The words came up out of the embers of the checkerboard civil war in which we are now engaged. The precise meaning, depending upon the audience, is: "Slant the facts to fit my bias." What no one or white or black, black or white is blunt truth because it would bruise too many minds.

Nor do I arrogate to myself the judicial role of Pontius Pilate with his hands in a basin of warm water. I think I see truth, but I cannot prove it. At times, I am convinced that, contrary to what I read in the newspapers, this checkerboard civil war is difficult to keep alive. It keeps dying like a damp fuse.

The war requires hate from militant blacks and whites to arouse the people from the orderly coma of daily living. The unpalatable paradox is that there is less loathing from Negroes to whites than there is going the other way. All the national polls, all the interviews show that the black man wants to get along with his white brother, but about 30,000,000 whites, for nebulous reasons, are afraid of blacks.

Philosophically, if one may assume that there is no such thing as a "bad" people, we can cure fear and distrust by education. This leads to a term which no black wants to hear: "Time." Education cannot be injected in a white racist with a needle. Like roast pork, it must be well done or risk sickness. The young black is going to require a lot of education too, but his requirement is the academic type. He needs school and social responsibility.

There is a pox on both houses. The white night riders of the northern cities who band to buy guns and wait for an invasion by Negroes are, in an ugly way, boy scouts scouting for boys. George Wallace may not be a soul brother to Rap Brown, but they drop the same salt into the nation's sores. Together, they breathe on the dying embers of contention so that more ghettos will flash with fire.

The apologists among the whites—the mayors, governors, authors and editorial writers—are most culpable. They plead guilty for the entire white race and I do not feel guilty. John Hersey sickened me with his book, The Alger Hotel Incident, which related the killing of Negroes by Detroit police. He practically apologized for not being able to "tell it like it is" because he isn't black.

The brutal truth is that three young men were murdered in that hotel mainly, one surmises, because they were caught with two white girls. Mr. Hersey seems to have written the book with a tape recorder and the best anyone can say of it is that it has one track. No whole police department can be as bad as Hersey made the Detroit department appear to be.

Will we have more riots? Of course. There will be more, but they are worthless without all those big cameras and lights, cops in helmets, national guardsmen with bayonets, looters and such other props as flames and snipers' bullets ripping the night air.

Three hundred years ago the whites bought black slaves from blacks in Africa. Suppose history had been reversed? Suppose the rich blacks of Africa sent boats here and bought white men? Would there be race riots along the Gold Coast of Africa today? And how about that dirty old word: superiority?

Isn't this the nitty-gritty of the whole situation? If there is anything that abrades the black more than lack of justice and bread, it is that he is still regarded as a chuckling, shuffling "Yasuh Massa" human being. He wants to be as tall as any white and is going to have it. The evolution of the Checkerboard Civil War points to equality as the only water which will slake the thirst of the black.

It is not something which can be granted by government fiat, as the Kennedy brothers assumed. You can not alter the inferior white who has innate need to feel superior. Nor will you change the vicious, vengeful black and his desire to burn the nation down. He husbands his hate; it's his security blanket. He chews the corners.

Some Negroes, according to a CBS poll, think that equality will be achieved in 50 years. We haven't that much time. The enormous mass of reasonable people among blacks and whites outnumber the extremists. On the checkerboard, most of them are eager to see the Negro attain the king row. That, I think, is telling like it is...

Drew Pearson Says Scientists Up in Air About Flying Saucers

WASHINGTON—Dr. Edward U. Condon is putting the final touches to a 350,000-word report on flying saucers which already has space scientists in an uproar.

Under Air Force contract, the respected 66-year-old physicist has directed a University of Colorado study of the flying saucer mystery. The Condon report will present a painstaking, case-by-case analysis of flying saucer sightings and will conclude that these offer no "hard evidence" of visitors from outer space.

However, the opposite conclusion has been reached by a senior University of Arizona physicist, Dr. James E. McDonald, who has been conducting his own independent study of unidentified flying objects. "My position," he said, "is that UFO's are entirely real, with the strong possibility that we are under surveillance by an extraterrestrial intelligence."

He has interviewed dozens of witnesses around the world who have reported seeing flying saucers. The separate descriptions they gave him are remarkably similar, he told this column.

Even before the Condon report is published, space scientists already are taking sides with Dr. Condon or Dr. McDonald in a controversy that is growing increasingly acrid.

Flying Charges

McDonald got hold of a preliminary memo, for instance, in which Robert J. Low, a former Condon associate, stated that the University of Colorado study would be conducted "almost exclusively by nonbelievers."

McDonald cited this as evidence that the forthcoming report will be biased. He charged that Condon had formed his conclusions in advance, then had set out to justify them.

Dr. Condon had no comment, but associates suggested that some flying saucer advocates might have a profit motive. Some specialize in writing books about flying saucers, and others would like to get money out of the government for flying saucer research.

The Condon sympathizers charged that Dr. McDonald had urged a multi-billion-dollar government spending program to find out whether UFOs are spacecraft from other planets.

They also accused McDonald of using Naval funds, intended for atmospheric research, to investigate flying saucers. Pentagon regulations give the Air Force sole responsibility for UFO investigations. Yet McDonald spent the Navy's money, they charge, to visit Australia and Tasmania, where he interviewed 80 flying saucer witnesses.

Dr. McDonald told this column that his flying saucer research and his expenditures had been approved by the Navy.

Meanwhile, it looks as if the Condon report may exacerbate the flying saucer controversy instead of settling it, as the Air Force had hoped.

Pueblo Powwow

At press time, 20 secret meetings had been held at Panmunjom, the Korean truce site, to negotiate the return of the 81 surviving crewmen who were captured last January aboard the U.S. spy ship Pueblo.

For the American negotiators, the talks had been frustrating and fruitless. Maj. Gen. Park Chung Kuk, the sullen North Korean negotiator, invariably would read an insulting statement about the "shameless act of aggression" committed by the U.S.

Usually, he wouldn't even respond to the points raised by Maj. Gen. Gilbert Woodward, the chief American negotiator, but would stick grimly to the prepared text. Finally, Park announced at the 19th meeting that he would break off the negotiations unless the American side made a new offer.

The U.S. came back with a proposal that the crew be turned over to a neutral nation while an international commission, acceptable to both sides, investigated the Pueblo incident. If the commission found that the Pueblo had violated North Korea's territorial waters, the U.S. offered to apologize.

As this is written, the Korean Reds were still "studying" the U.S. proposal. In the past, however, they had always demanded an abject apology as the first condition.

Hazardous Duty

Over the years, the confrontations at Panmunjom have been so exasperating that the United States changes chief negotiators every six months. The truce agreement calls for military negotiators, and the U.S. has complied scrupulously. But North Korea has sent in hard-bitten political negotiators in military uniform.

As evidence, General Park, who for years has headed the North Korean delegation, can usually be stumped by raising a technical military question.

The Communists have tried to turn the Panmunjom talks into a propaganda show. At the truce site, the North Koreans painted all their buildings green, then turned loose a flock of pigeons that had been trained to roost on green buildings. Communist guides would point out to visiting groups that the "doves of peace" would light only on North Korean structures.

Once, the pigeons were lured (by tasty bird food, it is suspected) to land on South Korea's multi-colored Freedom House. The Communists frantically captured the errant doves and sent them North, presumably for a reindoctrination course.

Editor, The Freeman:

I read with bewilderment your editorial published September 7, on "Guide for Humphrey." Your editorials, to me, usually seem to lead to a more logical conclusion than this one. The editorial is based on a figure of 40 per cent of the delegates who voted against President Johnson's Vietnam course. What does this 40 per cent figure you raised actually mean?

What about the factors of an honorable peace and of some small indication of restraint coming from Hanoi as protection for our men and the South Vietnamese during a cease fire? I had thought that both the Republicans and Democrats had generally agreed to the necessity for these contingencies. These points were not mentioned in your article. What about the other 60 per cent of the delegates? This group is a much clearer mandate for Vice President Humphrey to follow.

Shouldn't your editorial have touched on this segment of the delegates and their actual majority in fairness to both sides? Your statistics would lead me to wonder why the 40 per cent group was selected for discussion.

Your writing, to me, has attempted to castigate our President without a fair appraisal and criticism being given to the policies, statements and actions of President Johnson.

It was very unfortunate that the innuendoes in your statements—"Why, even at the convention, Mr. Johnson did not dare show his face because he would have been vying with Mayor Daley for the most boots. Still the Vice President insists on hitching his wagon to a fallen star," should have been published on your editorial page in this manner.

I would be very much appreciative if more enlightenment could be given to me on the writing of this editorial. It is so different from your usual writing.

I believe that practically 100 per cent of Americans want to stop the war in Vietnam. However, I further believe that a vast majority of our people have a sense of National Honor, a sense of what is right and wrong as to the humanitarian treatment of other people by an aggressor. We cannot negate these basic principles without "backing ourselves out of the face of the earth," and leaving the world to people who wish to subjugate the world. Your newspaper has given me much pleasure over the years. I believe it has character and is truly representative of fair reporting and editorializing to the best of your ability. I cannot say that I have always agreed with everything you have published, but the subject editorial is very disturbing to me.

Sincerely yours,

According to his own news release, last Sunday John Dyson, Democrat candidate for Congress, threw a picnic for 3,000 Democratic workers and supporters.

At today's catering prices and the hiring of mechanical and other rides, young Mr. Dyson must have picked up a bill bordering on, if not exceeding, $10,000.00 for one day of political activity.

Add this to his staggering spending for billboards, full page newspaper advertisements, radio spot announcements, intensive telephone and mailing campaigns and elaborate campaign material, to say nothing of far too numerous headquarters, and it seems quite evident that young Mr. Dyson, just about 2 years out of college, will spend any amount of money to seek the Congressional seat.

Conceivable, he could spend upwards of a quarter of a million dollars on his campaign, if he has not already done so.

He is fortunate to have such unlimited amounts of money at his finger tips, while having none of the responsibility of a father and husband for a family.

However, if wealthy young men, unmarried, inexperienced and fresh out of college, such as My Dyson, are going to become the rule, it will soon be impossible, if not impractical, for a mature man, with limited finances and family responsibilities to seek public office.

Perhaps the voters should ask themselves if they wish to carry the political revolution that far, on Election Day.

Solving Nation's Ills

For the first time in a decade, people in this country believe that the Republican party is better able to solve the nation's ills. The turn came last November, and the Republicans have maintained a lead ever since, with definite gains in July and August, as shown by the latest Gallup poll.

By a margin of two to one, the Republican party is credited with being able to keep the country out of a third world war. By the same margin, it would be able to keep prices down, people believe. And for the first time in 12 years, the Republicans are given the same vote of confidence as the Democrats with regard to being the party able to keep the country prosperous.

These are all most significant changes in the mood of the American people. Perhaps we should not be surprised at the belief that the Republicans can better keep us out of world war three, since all the wars in this century—the two world wars and the Korean and Vietnam wars—have occurred during Administrations of Democratic Presidents. Yet from Wilson, elected on the plank "He kept us out of War," only to plunge us into the first world war in 1917, to Johnson, the wartime Presidents all contended they went to war to preserve the peace. Apparently, the people are not buying that anymore.

Just as surprising are the votes on cost of living and prosperity. Democratic Presidents have campaigned on the claim "You've never had it so good," but these people think either party can maintain prosperity and, even, that the Republicans can do it and keep down the cost of living, too. Apparently, the new economics have not made as much headway as some people believed.

Wall Street Less Jittery

Time was when the only thing that could be counted on for certain at a time of national or international uncertainty was that Wall Street would go into a spasm.

First there would be a wild wave of emotional selling of stock and plummeting prices following bad news, then a return wave of equally feverish buying and bidding up.

It has happened in every one of 17 unexpected crises in the past 70 years, beginning with the sinking of the battleship Maine in 1898, says the Wall Street Journal.

It still happens, but there is a difference: The buying and selling waves are now much shorter-lived.

Consider the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia. Selling triggered by that crisis lasted only an hour drove the Dow Jones industrial average down less than 0.4 per cent. In just the first hour of trading the next day, the average had climbed higher than it had been before.

Compare this with what happened after the sinking of the Lusitania in 1915. The selling wave battered the market for 32 trading days. The D-J average dropped 11 per cent. It took 16 trading days for the market to recover.

Either Wall Street is becoming sophisticated or cynical or, as some believe, better communications and reporting techniques are helping to contain panic after a sudden crisis.

Whatever the reason, if you want to make money out of a calamity, advises the Journal, you have to be quick these days.

Changes in economic policy would have more effect on unemployment than manpower training, a symposium on American policy toward poverty at George Washington University, Washington, D. C., was told. The point was that manpower training without demand for new jobs would only mean a "better trained unemployed work force," only there are demands and manpower shortages and training programs should and can seek them out and fill them.

When Congress resumed work after the conventions in 1964, final adjournment came October 3. That is the latest date which leaders give themselves to wind-up the current session. After that, campaigning members will simply not be available to make a quorum that can take any action. The fate of the Johnson legislative program must be settled in one remaining month.

Meanwhile, it looks as if the Condon report may exacerbate the flying saucer controversy instead of settling it, as the Air Force had hoped.

Pueblo Powwow
At press time, 20 secret meetings had been held at Panmunjom, the Korean truce site, to negotiate the return of the 81 surviving crewmen who were captured last January aboard the U.S. spy ship Pueblo.

For the American negotiators, the talks had been frustrating and fruitless. Maj. Gen. Park Chung Kuk, the sullen North Korean negotiator, invariably would read an insulting statement about the "shameless act of aggression" committed by the U.S.

Usually, he wouldn't even respond to the points raised by Maj. Gen. Gilbert Woodward, the chief American negotiator, but would stick grimly to the prepared text. Finally, Park announced at the 19th meeting that he would break off the negotiations unless the American side made a new offer.

The U.S. came back with a proposal that the crew be turned over to a neutral nation while an international commission, acceptable to both sides, investigated the Pueblo incident. If the commission found that the Pueblo had violated North Korea's territorial waters, the U.S. offered to apologize.

As this is written, the Korean Reds were still "studying" the U.S. proposal. In the past, however, they had always demanded an abject apology as the first condition.

Hazardous Duty
Over the years, the confrontations at Panmunjom have been so exasperating that the United States changes chief negotiators every six months. The truce agreement calls for military negotiators, and the U.S. has complied scrupulously. But North Korea has sent in hard-bitten political negotiators in military uniform.

As evidence, General Park, who for years has headed the North Korean delegation, can usually be stumped by raising a technical military question.

The Communists have tried to turn the Panmunjom talks into a propaganda show. At the truce site, the North Koreans painted all their buildings green, then turned loose a flock of pigeons that had been trained to roost on green buildings. Communist guides would point out to visiting groups that the "doves of peace" would light only on North Korean structures.

Once, the pigeons were lured (by tasty bird food, it is suspected) to land on South Korea's multi-colored Freedom House. The Communists frantically captured the errant doves and sent them North, presumably for a indoctrination course.

Editor, The Freeman:

I read with bewilderment your editorial published September 7, on "Guide for Humphrey." Your editorials, to me, usually seem to lead to a more logical conclusion than this one. The editorial is based on a figure of 40 per cent of the delegates who voted against President Johnson's Vietnam course. What does this 40 per cent figure you raised actually mean?

What about the factors of an honorable peace and of some small indication of restraint coming from Hanoi as protection for our men and the South Vietnamese during a cease fire? I had thought that both the Republicans and Democrats had generally agreed to the necessity for these contingencies. These points were not mentioned in your article. What about the other 60 per cent of the delegates? This group is a much clearer mandate for Vice President Humphrey to follow. Shouldn't your editorial have touched on this segment of the delegates and their actual majority in fairness to both sides? Your statistics would lead me to wonder why the 40 per cent group was selected for discussion.

Your writing, to me, has attempted to castigate our President without a fair appraisal and criticism being given to the policies, statements and actions of President Johnson.

It was very unfortunate that the innuendoes in your statements—"Why, even at the convention, Mr. Johnson did not dare show his face because he would have been vying with Mayor Daley for the most boos. Still the Vice President insists on hitching his wagon to a fallen star," should have been published on your editorial page in this manner.

I would be very much appreciative if more enlightenment could be given to me on the writing of this editorial. It is so different from your usual writing.

I believe that practically 100 per cent of Americans want to stop the war in Vietnam. However, I further believe that a vast majority of our people have a sense of National Honor, a sense of what is right and wrong as to the humanitarian treatment of other people by an aggressor. We cannot negate these basic principles without "backing ourselves off the face of the earth," and leaving the world to people who wish to subjugate the world.

Your newspaper has given me much pleasure over the years. I believe it has character and is truly representative of fair reporting and editorializing to the best of your ability. I cannot say that I have always agreed with everything you have published, but the subject editorial is very disturbing to me.

Sincerely yours,

According to his own news release, last Sunday John Dyson, Democrat candidate for Congress, threw a picnic for 3,000 Democratic workers and supporters.

At today's catering prices and the hiring of mechanical and other rides, young Mr. Dyson must have picked up a bill bordering on, if not exceeding, $10,000.00 for one day of political activity.

Add this to his staggering spending for billboards, full page newspaper advertisements, radio spot announcements, intensive telephone and mailing campaigns and elaborate campaign material, to say nothing of far too numerous headquarters, and it seems quite evident that young Mr. Dyson, just about 2 years out of college, will spend any amount of money to seek the Congressional seat.

Conceivable, he could spend upwards of a quarter of a million dollars on his campaign, if he has not already done so.

He is fortunate to have such unlimited amounts of money at his finger tips, while having none of the responsibility of a father and husband for a family.

However, if wealthy young men, unmarried, inexperienced and fresh out of college, such as My Dyson, are going to become the rule, it will soon be impossible, if not impractical, for a mature man, with limited finances and family responsibilities to seek public office.

Perhaps the voters should ask themselves if they wish to carry the political revolution that far, on Election Day.

Summer Job Challenge for KHS Student

For Colleen Dillon, it was a summer of new exposure to the working world. A high school student, she worked at the social security district office at Kingston for the summer.

Colleen was one of the young people working under the Youth Opportunity Campaign. More than 2,232 such persons worked at social security offices around the country, a third more than the goal originally set under the campaign by the agency earlier during the summer.

The youngsters were paid $1.60 an hour under the program which was started by President Johnson in 1965 and seeks to provide meaningful jobs to needy 16 to 21-year-olds in order to enable them to remain in school.

Most of the young wage earners worked at Social Security Headquarters in Baltimore and in the agency's 6 payment centers where the greater number and variety of job opportunities exist.

Colleen, who went to work at social security in June, returned to Kingston High School in the fall, where she hopes to major in business. She said her work at social security has provided training in filing, typing and clerical work essential in her field of business and secretarial work.

George J. Habernig, district manager, said Colleen helped with several different kinds of work during the vacation months.

Youth Activism Born Of Vision, Not Talk

Student activism on the campuses is born of a sense of vision on the part of today's young people, a State University of New York official told students and faculty at Orange County Community College, Middletown, this week.

Speaking at the college's year-opening convocation, Dr. Sebastian V. Martorana, the university's vice-chancellor for two-year colleges, criticized society's adult establishment for spending too much time talking to themselves.

"Everybody is asking why are young people so disturbed, so activist, so bent on creating a new world," Dr. Martorana declared. "Young people are not content to talk only to themselves. They want to talk to the world. We should listen."

Activism, Dr. Martorana said, is entirely fitting and proper. "It's in the nature of man to want to live, to want to know, to want to do good."

He charged the assembled OCCC students to carry the message of community college opportunities to family and friends.

"Don't say there is no place where you are given a chance," he advised. Community colleges are dedicated to giving all people a new chance. Dr. Martorana noted. He reminded the OCCC students that they are among one million students attending community colleges across the nation this fall.

Presiding at the convocation was Dr. Robert T. Novak, OCCC president, who advised the students to be prepared to learn. "This college is dedicated to education, the faculty is dedicated to teaching, and we want you to be dedicated to learning... for we are here for you. You will receive here as good a college education as you can get anywhere in the country. Our standards are high and we demand hard work, but work that is not impossible to accomplish," he pointed out.

Andrew Zarutskie of Newburgh, president of the college's Student Senate, assured the student body of the administration and faculty's concern for their welfare. This is true, he said despite past disagreements between students and administration and any that might come in the future.

The convocation observed a moment of silence in memory of Dr. Thomas H. Kettig, professor of sociology at OCCC, who died Tuesday in New York City.

UCCC Orientation Day Includes Tests, Cards

Ulster County Community College on Wednesday held an Orientation Day for incoming freshmen students.

Classes for the fall semester began Thursday.

The students were welcomed by Dr. George B. Erbsstein, UCCC president, and James Kinns, president of the College's Student Government Organization.

The freshmen took a statewide regents pre-test and received ID cards.

In addition, they met with their respective divisional advisors and met members of the Student Personnel Office staff at UCCC.

The new students also were oriented to the Macdonald De-Witt Library on the campus and were informed of other services available at the college.

The freshmen were taken on tours of the five-building campus in small groups and shown the rooms where their classes will meet.

There also was an activities fair where each student club on the campus set up a display of the club's past events and its planned program for the 1968-69 academic year. The new students were given an opportunity at this time to join the clubs and student activities of their choice.

The orientation program was arranged by Donald C. Katt, the director of student activities at UCCC.

Dutchess College Has Problems With Space

Dutchess Community College many applicants undoubtedly sought admission elsewhere when they learned the classes were filled at Dutchess.

Davis urged high school seniors throughout the county to file their applications early if they plan to attend Dutchess next year. He stressed the fact that DCC's admission policy is non-restrictive and that students are enrolled on a first-come first-served basis.

By Mid-May

"The majority of our programs were filled by the middle of last May," he pointed out. This year "about 80 per cent of our students are from Dutchess County," Davis said. The majority of out-of-county students are from neighboring counties that do not sponsor community colleges.

Part-Timers

Part-time evening students currently number 1,733, an enrollment college officials expect will be increased by about 150 when additional registration takes place.

"This figure is, once again, comparable to last year's," Dr. Hall noted, "because the amount of classroom space the Continuing Education office can arrange is used up."

For part-time students he said that more Saturday morning classes have been arranged in addition to the evening schedule.

"We currently have a waiting list of 110 full-time students, most of whom are from Dutchess County," said Thomas Davis, director of admissions. "Some of these have been enrolled as part-time students in the evening, while others can be enrolled in the spring semester, when a percentage of students normally leaves the college."

He commented that "a great

Busy Week Marks New Ulster Academy Start

A busy first week marked the opening of Kingston's newest school.

Ulster Academy, the new independent secondary college preparatory school, started classes Monday in the former Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing on Mary's Avenue.

Initial enrollment of 54 students is expected to increase as late applications come in during the first weeks. The school expects its final enrollment for the first year will continue to increase by individual students coming on transfer as late as November as is frequently the case with independent schools.

The inaugural academic convocation was held Monday morning with welcoming addresses by George Hutton, president of the academy board and Raymond A. Nelson, headmaster. Orientation and introductory class schedules followed.

Athletic orientation was conducted Tuesday by Lou Schafer, director of athletics and Thursday the sports program began for both boys and girls at Hutton Park. Saturday a soccer clinic will be held at West Point Military Academy for all boys interested in the sport.

An activities introduction was the order of the day for Wednesday. Student activities in music, journalism, creative writing, art and theater were established and are expected to get in full swing Monday.

Student reaction during the first week has been most responsive with many expressing enthusiasm for the small class and opportunity for discussion. Classes go from 15 to 16 students down to three or four in special advanced courses in mathematics and language tutorials.

Prior to the opening of school a Parent-Faculty reception was held with more than 100 in attendance. A faculty-trustees dinner was held at the home of the headmaster Saturday night.

Upgrading Your Grades

by
LEI

With the school year just starting, grades may not seem quite as important as they will around final exam time, but remember, every homework (shudder!) assignment you turn in will contribute to your teacher's impression of the work you do, and, in many schools, day-to-day grades are counted as important as test scores in that all-important mark you get next June.

You've read a lot about how to study, how to take tests, and all that jazz. However, how you present your work to your teachers is almost as important as how you have mastered your assignment. After all, the best book report in the world isn't going to get a good grade if the teacher can't make out what you've written. And if your history isn't well, the best you've ever done, your teacher will be more inclined to be kind if it's at least turned in LOOKING like you know what it's all about.

Pencil on lined paper is fine—if you're under 10 years old, or for your first draft. Otherwise, recopy the draft with ballpoint. Black ballpoints cost a little more, but your work will look more mature. Plain typing paper can be set over a sheet of lined paper while you write (if you really feel helpless without lines) and the lines will show through enough to serve as a guide. If you have to have notebook holes, most stores sell ticket punches very reasonably.

Check Points

When you recopy that first draft, keep a vest-pocket dictionary handy, and check some of those words you aren't sure of. Better yet, check all of them. Be sure you are following the exact directions given for what your teacher wants you to present.

The recopying rule is good for math, too. In math (except, possibly, geometry) you cannot turn in a paper with an error if you check each problem carefully. (Many teachers, in fact, will lower your grade even for perfect solutions, if you haven't written out the check below the problem.) Recopying your math work will catch most of your errors.

If your handwriting is decidedly squirky, or if a lot of your teachers are piling on the written work, you could not make a wiser move than to take a typing course. Even if you plan to be a clerk or mechanic after high school, you will find that there is a premium on the man or woman who can type.

(If you're going to college you will either learn to type, or you will learn to smile happily while forking over a buck a page to have your college papers typed. Colleges do not permit hand-written work, no matter how neat.)

Not Expensive

Incidentally, a typewriter need not be an expensive investment. Careful shopping in want ads, second-hand shops, and rummage sales will often turn up a standard machine for under $10. Before you buy, of course, let an experienced typist look your bargain over for any serious defects.

Some other grade-raisers include the following. Turn your papers in on or before the deadline. If a topic is a little hazy, try reading another text on the subject. (They are available at the library.) If you don't understand what is expected in the assignment, ask the teacher—or teacher's pet. If you have time, ask if you may do optional assignments for extra credit.

And relax. Grades aren't everything... There's food, too.

Dutchess College Has Problems With Space

Dutchess Community College began classes for 1,884 full-time students, approximately the same number as last year.

"This is the second consecutive year the college has not been able to increase the size of its student body because of lack of space," said Dr. James F. Hall, president.

"It is because Dutchess has not been able to keep up with the demands for admission that the master plan for campus expansion was developed," he added. "This plan provides for growth into the 70's and would give us the space that is even now apparently needed."

Part-time evening students currently number 1,733, an enrollment college officials expect will be increased by about 150 when additional registration takes place.

Summer Job Challenge for KHS Student

For Colleen Dillon, it was a summer of new exposure to the working world. A high school student, she worked at the social security district office at Kingston for the summer.

Colleen was one of the young people working under the Youth Opportunity Campaign. More than 2,232 such persons worked at social security offices around the country, a third more than the goal originally set under the campaign by the agency earlier during the summer.

The youngsters were paid $1.60 an hour under the program which was started by President Johnson in 1965 and seeks to provide meaningful jobs to needy 16 to 21-year-olds in order to enable them to remain in school.

Most of the young wage earners worked at Social Security Headquarters in Baltimore and in the agency's 6 payment centers where the greater number and variety of job opportunities exist.

Colleen, who went to work at social security in June, returned to Kingston High School in the fall, where she hopes to major in business. She said her work at social security has provided training in filing, typing and clerical work essential in her field of business and secretarial work.

George J. Habernig, district manager, said Colleen helped with several different kinds of work during the vacation months.

LAWRENCE C. SELZO

Area Student Active in Fund Raising Effort

A Hurley Heights youth, Lawrence C. Selzo, recently played an active role in a nationwide missionary effort to aid a hospital in Africa.

Selzo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Selzo, served as treasurer of the Global Christian Impact Conference which had as its overall goal raising $20,000 for the expansion of Greenville Hospital, South Africa. The campaign was a complete success with results topping the set quota.

A 1966 graduate of Kingston High School, Selzo has completed two years at Greenville College, Greenville, Ill. While there he was active in student government as well as conducting the successful fund campaign.

At the present time Selzo is furthering his college education at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb, Ill. A business administration student, he is majoring in marketing.

If his fund raising abilities are any indication it would appear he is well on his way to a successful business career.

IN SESSION — Pioneering students at the New Ulster Academy attend first classes of the independent college preparatory school this week. Initial enrollment was 54 with more expected to enroll later this fall. The first week of classes was a busy one of getting acquainted with fellow students and faculty. Many commented on the small class size which allowed for discussion and participation in all their subjects. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

BARBECUED CHICKEN

Broiler halves barbecued over charcoal makes good picnic food. Broilers are always delicious and nutritious, and easy on the budget, says Louise M. Kakargo, Extension Home Economist. A tangy barbecue sauce turns ordinary chicken into company fare. The ideal size for each half is about one pound. This will serve one adult or two children.

To cook broilers, you need a hot, non-flaming fire. Charcoal briquets are excellent fuel because they burn for more than an hour. Charcoal is also satisfactory for barbecuing chicken. Place broiler halves over the fire after the flame is gone. Turn the halves every five to ten minutes, depending on the heat from the fire. Use the barbecue sauce to baste, brushing it on the broiler halves every few minutes during cooking. The basting should be light at first and heavy near the end of the cooking period.

Bridal Shower Is Given

A surprise bridal shower was given in honor of Sandra Lee Acker on Tuesday, August 27. The gala occasion took place in Moose Hall, this city.

Miss Acker is engaged to wed John H. Fisher on Saturday, Sept. 28 in the Church of the Presentation, Port. Ewen.

Cooking time is about one hour, depending on the amount of heat and on the size of the broilers. Test the chicken for doneness by pulling the wing away from the body. If the meat in this area splits easily and there is no red color in the joint, the chicken is ready to serve.

BARBECUE SAUCE

(enough for 10 halves)

1 cup cooking oil
1 pint cider vinegar
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon pepper
1 egg
Beat the egg, then add the oil and beat again. Add other ingredients and stir. You may vary the recipe to suit individual tastes.

Leftover sauce can be placed in a glass jar and stored in a cool place for several weeks. You can prepare delicious barbecued chicken any day of the year right under the broiler unit in your range.

HOME-BROILED BARBECUED BROILERS

(enough for 5 broiler halves)
1/2 cup cooking oil
1 cup cider vinegar
2 tablespoons salt
1 1/2 teaspoons poultry seasoning
1/4 teaspoon white pepper
1 egg
Dip the broiler halves in the basting sauce and place them on a rack in the broiling pan so the surface of the chicken is from four to five inches below the broiling unit. Turn the halves about every ten minutes and baste them each time. It takes 30 to 40 minutes for the broilers to cook. The exact time depends on the size of the chicken. Test by pulling the wing, as described above.

Planning a barbecue for a crowd? Cornell Extension Bulletin No. 862, "Barbecued Chicken," contains directions for cooking and serving a complete barbecued chicken dinner for 5 to 300 people.

So, You're Driving to the Olympics? Be Careful!

An Olympic Feature

By TERRANCE W. MCGARRY
MEXICO CITY (UPI)—So you're driving to the Olympics? Most Americans and Canadians who set off by auto for Mexico adopt one of two postures—the "into-the-wilderness-safari" attitude, or the "I thought it was just like home" attitude.

Both are silly. Driving to Mexico City isn't like a cross-country drive in the United States. It is both more demanding and more interesting.

But a plunge into high sands of tourists do it every year, including retired school-teachers who look like the original of the "little old lady from Dubuque."

If they can do it, certainly you can do it, right?

The rules for a probably pleasant trip are simply—not few, but simple.

First of all, start with the car. If it's not in top condition, forget it. There are hundreds of miles of open country to cross, with primitive garage facilities. Mexican mechanics can frequently work wonders in makeshift repairs, and it makes a funny story to talk about your 40-mile midnight burro ride to civilization, once you're back home.

But it's only funny later. Don't camp out in the open country. If you're driving a camper, or pulling a trailer, spend the night in a sizable town, preferably in a trailer court.

Remember, by the standards of the Mexican countryside, where the average income is $200 a year, you are totting a fortune around with you.

No Banditos

You won't meet any of those banditos, the gentlemen on horseback wearing crossed bandoleers of bullets on their chests, who populate the fictitious Mexico of Hollywood movies which infuriate Mexicans, who ban the films. But there is no sense tempting the simple, basically friendly—but very poor—peasants of the countryside.

Have your car title with you when you reach the border. Mexico has no intention of becoming a haven for stolen U.S. autos, and if you can't prove you own it, you probably won't get in.

Your car insurance is invalid in Mexico. Get a Mexican policy at the border. It's no problem. The companies have the U.S. side of the Rio Grande so thickly billboarded as to constitute a severe blight. Lady Bird Johnson not withstanding.

Mexico's legal system is based on the Napoleonic Code—guilty until proven innocent—and the judicial process is slow. Auto insurance can save you months in a provincial jail. Don't cross the border without full coverage—collision, liability and theft.

Guide Is Essential

The insurance company will probably give you a guide to restaurants, hotels and sights of interest along the route. If they don't, buy one. It makes the difference between an interesting trip and a dull or exasperating battle with an unfamiliar land.

Don't plan on selling the car here and flying home. It's against the law, and it takes an experienced professional smuggler to flout it. If you bring a car in, you won't be allowed to leave the country without it.

There are four main routes to Mexico City from the U.S. border.

The most heavily travelled begins at Laredo, Tex., running south through Monterrey, Saltillo, San Luis Potosi and Queretaro. If you're at all timid, go this way. Most of the land is flat, the road straight and well paved, and tourists are common along its route.

To the east is Route 85, sometimes called "the old road" or "the mountain route." For hundreds of miles a winding two-lane blacktop road snakes through pine-covered mountains, over passes misty with fog, and lush green tropical valleys. It's the most scenic route.

Cadillacs Don't Count

Walter Mitty sports car drivers can revive memories of the long vanished Mexican road race. The stick-shift-and-flat tires set will love it. But horsing a Cadillac around the countless switchbacks will bring on the mumbled jabbings by slowdown. Start off at Brownsville, or McAllen, Tex., down through Ciudad Victoria, Mante, Valles and Pachuca.

With either road, figure a day and a half or two days driving time from the border, with one overnight stop, to Mexico City. Fast drivers who know the road well make it in 10-12 hours. If you don't qualify, don't try.

Never drive at night outside the city areas. Mexican cows are black and like to soak up the heat from the sun-warmed pavement. Trucks and buses frequently have no headlights. Stretching the day past sundown can cause you to greet the dawn in a hospital, or at the bottom of a deep barranca.

The third route is the Pan-American Highway that reaches 1,260 miles south from El Paso, Tex., through Chihuahua, Torreon, Zacatecas, San Luis Potosi, and Queretaro. Figure on at least two days driving time, maybe three, and try to develop an aesthetic appreciation of the desert. You'll see a lot of it.

The westernmost route, 1,516 miles of it, kicks off from Nogales, Ariz., hugging the Pacific Coast for hundreds of miles. Lots of mountains and tropical seashores, and about a 3-4 day drive for the California and other Pacific Coast drivers.

Fill up your gas tank at every station—every one, even if you are only a quarter tank down. It may be 180 miles to the next station, or the station down the road may be out of gas.

Your gasoline credit card is not good in Mexico. The government runs all the gas stations. The yellow pump marked "Pemex 100" is the equivalent of U.S. high test. The green pump marked "Gasolmex" is the equivalent of U.S. regular. Prices about the same as in the U.S. (No matter what Aunt Martha said about the gas costing "a dollar a gallon." That's a peso—eight cents—per liter, and works out to about the same as U.S. prices.)

The red pump marked "Mexolina" is equivalent to crude oil, and is for emergency use only. If you have to use it, dilute it with "Pemex 100" as soon as possible.

Stay on the main roads. That tempting short cut on the map may be passable only to jeeps, heavy trucks, motorcycles or burros.

When adding oil, get out of the car, and lift the oil can before the filling station attendant pours it in, then watch to make sure it goes into the engine. There are those who will go through the motions with an empty can, which makes for an expensive grinding noise later on, as your engine turns to junk in the desert, 100 miles from a garage.

If you get lost, look for a truck driver, a policeman (in the towns—the rural highways are very lightly patrolled, or not patrolled at all), or a road sign. The peasants by the roadside may not know the "map name" of their own village, much less understand where it is you want to go. But courtesy requires them to give you an answer, sometimes the first that occurs to them.

Earl Laird Surprises Field in Free-for-All

MONTICELLO — Earl Laird, behind him, Earl Laird, driven the grand and glorious gelding by Jimmy Cruise for his owner that has been a trotting sensation in his later years proved once again that old men can still do it, coping last night's $15,000 Sullivan County Free-For-All trot by a half length in 2:03.2, knocking off a field of seven other crack trotters.

Now eight years old and with just three solid years of racing stands for the half, it was Stereo in the lead, Flamboyant second outside, Carlisle third outside and Earl Laird, two wide sitting fourth. The time at the half was 1:02.4, marking a 3:13.3 second quarter.

At the three-fourths pole it was still Stereo on top, Earl Laird hung second, Flamboyant brushing hard third outside and Carlisle. As they hit the three-quarter pole, the visumatic timer read 1:33.1, showing the leader chalking up a 3:02.3 third quarter.

The field was exactly the same in both the final turn and at the top of the stretch. Carlisle, however, began to fade fast, and at the finish was last. He had moved four wide in the final turn, trying to get past Earl who was two wide, and Flamboyant, three wide.

boyant, who held on, was much back of Fresh Yankee. Both were clocked in 2:03.3.

The $7,500 winner's share boosted Earl Laird over the $90,000 mark this year, giving him a total of $90,264. Lifetime, the tireless gelding to within $51 of the magical quarter-million lifetime earned mark. The final quarter was clocked in :30.1, showing how much steam Earl Laird had left.

Sent off at 7-2, in the night before season's end spectacular, Earl Laird returned mutuals of $9.40, 4.80 and 2.40. Fresh Yankee was worth $6.00 and 2.60 and upped his 1968

Palmer, Sanders Join PGA Rebels

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI)—The rebellion among golf's touring professionals rolled on today as two more of the tour's top name players were added to the ranks of the American Professional Golfers (APG), the newly-formed player organization.

Arnold Palmer, the all-time leading money-winner on the pro circuit, and veteran Doug Sanders Friday added their names to the growing list of disgruntled golfers who have joined the APG in a dispute with the Professional Golfers Association (PGA).

Palmer said his decision to join "was a difficult one." But Sanders said he had not joined before because he "just never had the chance to sign the forms."

Sanders, who is embarking on a series of business enterprises Lady B Fast Wins Trot Feature at Yonkers
YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI)—Lady B. Fast was true to her name Friday night as she closed fast and won the featured $15,000 trot at Yonkers Raceway before a crowd of 22,912.

The 4-year-old bay mare nipped Style Setter by a head and returned $12.80, $4.40 and $3.20. Time for the mile was 2:02.4. Keystone Pride finished third. The 4-7 daily double combination of Turbine Hanover ($21.80) and Speakeasy ($28.40) paid $250.60.

Friday's Fights

PO Substation Possible In County Office Building

The possibility of establishing a post office substation in the County Office Building is being studied, according to a report this week from the County Legislature's Operational Efficiency Committee.

The committee has checked on the volume of mail that is forwarded and received by the county and believes it would be more efficient for the county and for the Post Office Department to have a substation situated on the main floor of the county office building.

County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-New Paltz, Gardner has been authorized to contact the Post Office Department to discuss the proposal. The proposal engenders a few problems. As the office building is only a half block away from the Uptown Branch Post Office on Main Street, it would not be reasonable to believe that the Post Office Department would operate two substations that close together. The present site is the property of Old Dutch Church and has been in operation from 15 to 20 years. There is also a four to five year extended lease with options for renewal. If a change is contemplated it would be open to bids.

Dyson Explores Inflation in Greene Opening

Democratic Congressional candidate John Dyson today opened his Greene County headquarters in Catskill and Cairo and presented a four point plan "to curb inflation and stabilize the American dollar."

Dyson first proposed that the federal government "should use all of its prestige to persuade business and labor to keep prices and wages consistent with increases in productivity."

His further points were to "wisely use fiscal policy for curbing inflation by regulating increases and decreases in spending and taxation;" that the Federal Reserve Board be prepared to control the supply of money and tighten credit "whenever inflationary pressures so require, and, finally, that 'Congress . . . carefully review all deductions presently allowed for depletion, obsolescence, depreciation, and business investment . . ."

Dyson defined inflation as "a mother budgeting her household money—suddenly learning that it no longer buys enough clothing for her children, or covers the food and medical bills for her family."

"Inflation," Dyson also declared, "is the plight of an elderly citizen, who lives on social security and hard-earned savings sadly learning that his money no longer pays for daily expenses."

The Democratic candidate observed that inflation was more than a domestic danger but that it weakened the faith of other nations in the stability of the American dollar, and as a result, endangers the health of the world's economy."

Carmel Resident Killed in Mishap

BREWSTER, N.Y. (UPI)—George Dubois Jr., 25, of Carmel, was killed early today when his car went out of control on Route 6 near this Putnam County community and struck a rock formation. State police said Dubois died at 3 a. m. at Putnam Community Hospital, two hours after the accident.

Let's Find Out

Let's Find Out Solves Problems, Gets Answers, and Cuts Red Tape. Write the column in care of The Freeman, or phone between 12 noon and 2 p. m. daily.

Q. Can you tell me why some communities in Ulster County have enacted local laws permitting burning of leaves, brush and wood, while other towns and villages do not have any laws or ordinances governing elimination of such rubbish by burning?—Mr. I.L.

A. Elimination of leaves, brush and wood is indeed a burning question, but the answer is not always found in burning by local laws. The reason, says State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, is that the State Air Pollution Control Board has already adopted rules banning such burning and these rules take precedence over any local law.

Q. Is there a junked car ordinance in the city of Kingston? There are many cars standing around on lots and lawns in the city; for example, one on Mary's Avenue. On our particular street, we have well-kept yards and homes, except for one property which has a car up on blocks in the front yard. We feel we pay too much taxes to have this view from our picture window. I'm sure that if this occurred on upper Pearl Street or West Chestnut Street, it would not be there long. This particular place of which I speak also has the beginnings of a junk-yard. What can be done? This is in the Ninth Ward where James Madden is Alderman.—KINGSTON TAXPAYER.

A. Most assuredly, Kingston does have an ordinance in relation to the outdoor storage of abandoned, junked, discarded, and unlicensed motor vehicles. Briefly, the ordinance makes it unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, either as owner, occupant, lessee, agent or tenant to store or deposit or cause or permit to be stored or deposited such vehicles as described above upon any land within the city. Those convicted of violating the ordinance are subject to a fine not exceeding $100 on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Not only does the city have such an ordinance but it is being actively enforced at this time. Police officer Louis Sapp is currently cruising local streets, taking down license numbers of such vehicles, and warning those responsible that they must be removed. To push for action in your neighborhood, contact him and he will serve notice that such autos must be removed within five days.

Q. Can you tell me the purpose of the construction work now going on along the Cottekill Road just across from the entrance to Ulster County Community College? Is the college expanding or is something else planned?—STONE RIDGE RESIDENT.

A. Ulster County's Acting Superintendent of Highways George Fichtner says work on this road section was included long ago in the original plans to improve the entire road from Cottekill to Route 209 as a repair project. The piece in question is one on which the property owner involved would not settle with the commission in charge. After condemnation proceedings were underway, the owner reversed his position and the program now being belatedly undertaken is by Ulster's Highway Department for general improvement purposes, now that the land has finally been made available.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," they say. Why, then, aren't the dead elm trees that line our streets and highways removed? They are a potential danger to all pedestrians and drivers—for limbs and, eventually, the trees themselves will fall. Is a dead elm tree the responsibility of the property owner or the highway department?—CONCERNED FOR LIFE AND LIMB.

A. If trees are on private property their removal is the responsibility of the property owner. Unfortunately, all of New York State has been badly hit by the Dutch Elm disease which is almost beyond anyone's control. And almost anyone should be able to understand that the cost of removal to many, many property owners is so prohibitive as to work a hardship. However, for example, when a city such as Kingston is "put on notice" regarding a dead tree on a specific property, the Board of Public Works, under Title 13 of the City Charter, has the authority to mandate that the property owner keep trees cleared of dead limbs, sprayed and cared for, or take the responsibility for removal within a set time limit. Because Kingston's Superintendent of Public Works, Charles J. Cole, is all too cognizant that the expense to the owner can be great and often beyond his means, since insured contractors must be hired, he is pushing for a long-range planning program to solve the problem.

Cole feels the situation is so serious and that property owners can so ill afford to "cure" the problem, that he is asking for an appropriation in the upcoming annual budget to finance a new three-year program for tree removal. It is his hope that the Board of Public Works will be able, with such an appropriation, to undertake a working agreement with the utilities to remove trees. Between the BPW and the utilities, owners could be approached for a certain percentage of the cost involved rather than being asked to shoulder the entire burden of financing removal. Whether the appropriation is approved or not will hinge entirely on those officials who serve on the Common Council.

Q. I own a "camper" vehicle and I want to park it on my own property. But I have been told that I must secure a permit from the village in which I live to do so. Is this true?—Mr. E.P.W.

A. Not true, says State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, who notes that although times change, legal precedents do not, and a village cannot require such a permit. He defines a "camper" as a vehicle with self-contained living quarters and an offshoot of the mobile trailer, and says the same law should apply. Since a municipality can't, under court rulings, require a permit for the parking of an unoccupied trailer, "it follows that an ordinance to require a permit for parking a camper on the owner's property is invalid," says Levitt.

Houston Loses Heart Patient

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Houston's 12th and latest heart transplant recipient died at Methodist Hospital Friday after suffering a cardiac arrest. Death came to James E. Singleton, 47, of Fort Worth, on his 27th wedding anniversary, eight days after he received the heart of a teen-age motorcycle accident victim. Of the 43 heart transplant patients in the world, 21 now survive. Eight of the 12 recipients in Houston are living. Singleton, a tool maker, received the heart of Paul C. Mason, 17, of Long Beach, Calif., on Sept. 5. Mason was fatally injured three days before and was flown to Houston after his family was told he suffered irreparable brain damage. The transplant surgery was performed by a team led by Dr. Michael E. DeBakey.

Committeemen To Be Elected

Ulster County farmers were reminded today that Friday, Sept. 20, is the last date for turning in ballots in the election of community Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation committeemen.

The ballots, plus a signed statement on the back of the outside envelope, must be returned to the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, 54 John Street, Kingston, either in person or by mail, by that day.

For each community where an election is being held, three regular committee members and two alternates are to be elected. The chairmen, vice chairman and regular member of the elected community committee are to serve as delegates to the county convention to be held Sept. 27 in Kingston.

Carmel Resident Killed in Mishap

BREWSTER, N.Y. (UPI)—George Dubois Jr., 25, of Carmel, was killed early today when his car went out of control on Route 6 near this Putnam County community and struck a rock formation.

State police said Dubois died at 3 a.m. at Putnam Community Hospital, two hours after the accident.

Let's Find Out

Let's Find Out Solves Problems, Gets Answers, and Cuts Red Tape. Write the column in care of The Freeman, or phone between 12 noon and 2 p.m. daily.

Q. Can you tell me why some communities in Ulster County have enacted local laws permitting burning of leaves, brush and wood, while other towns and villages do not have any laws or ordinances governing elimination of such rubbish by burning?—Mr. L.L.

A. Elimination of leaves, brush and wood is indeed a burning question, but the answer is not always found in burning via local laws. The reason, says State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, is that the State Air Pollution Control Board has already adopted rules banning such burning and those rules take precedence over any local law.

Q. Is there a junked car ordinance in the city of Kingston? There are many cars standing around on lots and lawns in the city; for example, one on Mary's Avenue. On our particular street, we have well-kept yards and homes, except for one property which has a car up on blocks in the front yard. We feel we pay too much taxes to have this view from our picture window. I'm sure that if this occurred on upper Pearl Street or West Chestnut Street, it would not be there long. This particular place of which I speak also has the beginnings of a junk-yard. What can be done? This is in the Ninth Ward where James Madden is Alderman.—KINGSTON TAXPAYER.

A. Most assuredly, Kingston does have an ordinance in relation to the outdoor storage of abandoned, junked, discarded, and unlicensed motor vehicles. Briefly, the ordinance makes it unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, either as owner, occupant, lessee, agent or tenant to store or deposit or cause or permit to be stored or deposited such vehicles as described above upon any land within the city. Those convicted of violating the ordinance are subject to a fine not exceeding $100 on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Not only does the city have such an ordinance but it is being actively enforced at this time. Police officer Louis Sapp is currently cruising local streets, taking down license numbers of such vehicles, and warning those responsible that they must be removed. To push for action in your neighborhood, contact him and he will serve notice that such autos must be removed within five days.

Q. Can you tell me the purpose of the construction work now going on along the Cottekill Road just across from the entrance to Ulster County Community College? Is the college expanding or is something else planned?—STONE RIDGE RESIDENT.

A. Ulster County's Acting Superintendent of Highways George Fichtner says work on this road section was included long ago in the original plans to improve the entire road from Cottekill to Route 309 as a repair project. The piece in question is one on which the property owner involved would not settle with the commission in charge. After condemnation proceedings were underway, the owner reversed his position and the program now being belatedly undertaken is by Ulster's Highway Department for general improvement purposes, now that the land has finally been made available.

Q. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," they say. Why, then, aren't the dead elm trees that line our streets and highways removed? They are a potential danger to all pedestrians and drivers—for limbs and, eventually, the trees themselves will fall. Is a dead elm tree the responsibility of the property owner or the highway department?—CONCERNED FOR LIFE AND LIMB.

A. If trees are on private property their removal is the responsibility of the property owner. Unfortunately, all of New York State has been badly hit by the Dutch Elm disease which is almost beyond anyone's control. And almost anyone should be able to understand that the cost of removal to many, many property owners is so prohibitive as to work a hardship. However, for example, when a city such as Kingston is "put on notice" regarding a dead tree on a specific property, the Board of Public Works, under Title 13 of the City Charter, has the authority to mandate that the property owner keep trees cleared of dead limbs, sprayed and cared for, or take the responsibility for removal within a set time limit. Because Kingston's Superintendent of Public Works, Charles J. Cole, is all too cognizant that the expense to the owner can be great and often beyond his means, since insured contractors must be hired, he is pushing for a long-range planning program to solve the problem.

Cole feels the situation is so serious and that property owners can so ill afford to "cure" the problem, that he is asking for an appropriation in the upcoming annual budget to finance a new three-year program for tree removal. It is his hope that the Board of Public Works will be able, with such an appropriation, to undertake a working agreement with the utilities to remove trees. Between the BPW and the utilities, owners could be approached for a certain percentage of the cost involved rather than being asked to shoulder the entire burden of financing removal. Whether the appropriation is approved or not will hinge entirely on those officials who serve on the Common Council.

Q. I own a "camper" vehicle and I want to park it on my own property. But I have been told that I must secure a permit from the village in which I live to do so. Is this true?—Mr. E.P.W.

A. Not true, says State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, who notes that although times change, legal precepts do not, and a village cannot require such a permit. He defines a "camper" as a vehicle with self-contained living quarters and an offshoot of the mobile trailer, and says the same law should apply. Since a municipality can't, under court rulings, require a permit for the parking of an unoccupied trailer, "it follows that an ordinance to require a permit for parking a camper on the owner's property is invalid," says Levitt.

Houston Loses Heart Patient

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Houston's 12th and latest heart transplant recipient died at Methodist Hospital Friday after suffering a cardiac arrest.

Death came to James E. Singleton, 47, of Fort Worth, on his 27th wedding anniversary, eight days after he received the heart of a teen-age motorcycle accident victim.

Of the 43 heart transplant patients in the world, 21 now survive. Eight of the 12 recipients in Houston are living.

Singleton, a tool maker, received the heart of Paul C. Mason, 17, of Long Beach, Calif., on Sept. 5. Mason was fatally injured three days before and was flown to Houston after his family was told he suffered irreparable brain damage.

The transplant surgery was performed by a team led by Dr. Michael E. DeBakey.

Committeemen To Be Elected

Ulster County farmers were reminded today that Friday, Sept. 20, is the last date for turning in ballots in the election of community Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation committeemen.

The ballots, plus a signed statement on the back of the outside envelope, must be returned to the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, 54 John Street, Kingston, either in person or by mail, by that day.

For each community where an election is being held, three regular committee members and two alternates are to be elected. In the South Philip, three regular committee members and two alternates are to be elected. In the South Philip, three regular committee members and two alternates are to be elected. A SERVICE

insipid (in-SIP-id)
dull, uninteresting

The young manager, bored by the insipid remarks of the guest speaker, left the auditorium before the meeting was over.

Once again the students were forced to listen to the insipid statements of the school nurse as she reminded everyone about the hazards of sunburn.

The ladies had to agree that their brother's parties were always insipid; however, they felt obligated to attend.

Dear Abby

'Dirty Old Man' Needs MD

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
101968 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am interested in your reply to "DIRTY OLD MAN'S WIFE." You said, "He's sick. Get him to a doctor." I've known for years that my husband is "sick." It is so humiliating to sit in a restaurant with him while he flirts with the waitresses, or any woman sitting nearby whose eye he happens to catch. And when he stares at the young girls from their feet up, and then down again, I want to run.

I meet my friends away from my home because they won't come by if they know he's there. I have many worthwhile interests, such as music, gardening, books and church work, but, O, for a companion to grow old with!

Yes, I realize he's sick. But how do you get a man in his 60's to a doctor?

WISHFUL THINKING
DEAR WISHFUL: You can't

call the men in the white coats and ask them to come and throw a net over him. But you can call your family doctor and tell him what you have told me. Together you can work out a scheme to get your husband to submit to a PHYSICAL examination. The mental examination can be subtly worked in without arousing suspicion. There IS help for your husband's illness (and it IS an illness) — and it's more common than you think.

time, cut glass was THE thing, and I received dozens of lovely pieces. I put them in my china closet and used them only on very rare occasions.

I have five daughters and ten grandchildren. I gave them each their choice from my collection of cut glass, and still had many nice pieces left over, so when an antique dealer offered to buy them from me, I sold them.

One of my daughters criticized me terribly for "selling" my wedding gifts. I felt that the money could be used to buy birthday gifts for my family.

Did I do wrong? I am 83 years old. Sincerely,

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny... astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Day features details, basic chores affecting household. Unify family desires. Tie up loose ends. Find out where you want to go and why. Throw off unreasonable fear.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Relatives, neighbors figure prominently. A short journey also appears on agenda. Select best ideas—discard the impractical. Give full play to intellectual curiosity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money matters come to fore. Protect possessions. Be aware of basic values. Find day for planning home improvements. Check budget. Be diplomatic in approach to family member.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cycle move up. You are able to discern hidden meanings. Be analytical. People behind the scenes tend to be on your side. Know this: be confident. Take initiative. Make contacts.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Spiritual adviser can prove of great benefit. Know this and have courage to seek advice. Day to decide about added responsibility. Deal with fact, not fiction. Adhere to principles.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): A friend who confides embarrassing problem needs sympathy, not admonition. Stress maturity, understanding. Don't hang on to past. Look to future; highlight potential.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Accent on ambition, standing in community. Prestige rises. It may be necessary to take a stand. Lean toward the new, dynamic. Spotlight originality and independence.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): Stress on ability to convincingly present views. Your intuitive feelings could serve as reliable guide. Don't hide light under bushel. Means speak up—write and communicate.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Money of mate, partner seems major point of discussion. Be versatile. Accept suggestions without being overly sensitive. An agreement is necessary regarding funds, budget.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): Not wise to rock boat. Means today accent rules, regulations. Learn before you rebel. Don't make assertions without doing research. One you love wants to respect you. Know this—reach high.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Strive to complete basic obligations. Pay heed to health needs. Maintain balance—be moderate. Avoid conflict with associate, neighbor or co-workers. Key to success is understanding.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): Good lunar aspect today coincides with change, romance. Bring forth creative talents. Self-expression is essential to happiness. Don't bottle up emotions. Your feelings are shared—know this.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have been on a social whirl—you are artistic, musical, have sense of drama.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for CANCER, LEO. Special word to CAPRICORN: reach understanding with partners, mate.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Family dialog is beneficial. Speak up—also listen and learn. Plans concerning household, future security are accented. By-pass the superficial. Concentrate on real, lasting matters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Visit from one who means much to you could highlight day. Concentrate on family harmony. Your forces, efforts tend to be diffused. Look behind immediate indications. Be perceptive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone may be trying to sell you item you do not need. Message clear by tonight. Study TAURUS indications. Be patient. Protect assets. Avoid impulse buying. Get what is essential.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cycle continues high. Opportunity to make financial gains is highlighted. Study investment possibilities. Member of opposite sex could provide key. Be attractive—turn on charm.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Unusual opportunity to express creative urge is presented. Take advantage of it. Erase self-doubt. You are dynamic and a showman. Make others aware of this today. Go to it.

VIRGO (August 23-Sept 22): Accent on friends and desires. In order to fulfill obligation you may have to make minor sacrifice. Realize that the more you give, the more you are apt to receive.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Your hunch about career, business matters proves valid. Know this—and follow through. Important to display confidence. Superiors are concerned with your attitude, outlook. Act accordingly.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): You add to knowledge. Emphasis is on writing, advertising. Be versatile. Know that many are enthusiastic about your ability, product. Act as if you know it. Help others to be sure, confident.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Practical matters come to forefront. Necessary to determine costs, time involved, other important details. Emotions run high. Discipline is necessary to complete tasks.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): Stress on ability to communicate with mate, partner. Permit others to have their say. You can afford to listen, wait and observe. Gather information. Bide your time.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Much happens at low key. Means this is a day to build fences, bridges toward better relationships. Avoid the flashy. Pay no heed to one who spreads rumors. Be factual, principled.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): Some changes may be premature. You will have to make adjustments. No matter how inconvenient, realize change is a necessity—involves children, other loved ones.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, basically serious, attracted to metaphysical subjects. Next month one of your fondest desires could be realized.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for CANCER, LEO, VIRGO. Special word to AQUARIUS: adhere to schedule despite temptations.

Fewer TV Changes Expected This Fall

By DEAN GYSEL

Usually a new television season holds some anticipatory pleasures but after what we have seen this spring and summer, this fall may be anticlimactic.

There has been more real life violence on the screen in the last six months than Hollywood would dare offer in a full season of mayhem.

It must be with some irony that producers who have been busy excising blood and gore from their series to appease the public's concern look upon the events that have dominated the home screen recently.

Television's reaction to "overreaction," to the anti-violence crusade is one of the most significant aspects of the 1968-69 season, and perhaps future seasons.

This is also the year of the black man with about 30 Negroes cast in continuing series roles. Few will dispute this still a token pace. The attitude of the networks may be summed up best in an exchange between Diahann Carroll and Lloyd Nolan in the premiere of NBC's comedy, Julia.

Miss Carroll, a nurse applying for a job, warns the doctor (Nolan) over the phone that she is "colored."

"What color are you," "You don't understand, doctor, I'm a Negro."

"Oh," says Nolan, "have you always been a Negro or are you just trying to be fashionable?"

Violence and blackness aside, the best new shows may be three years old. For the first time there will be a movie in prime time each night this year.

In practice, movies have become television's anthology series and the only certain winners in the ratings. It is a mixed blessing. The increase in the number of movies means a decrease in conventional series, and less challenge to come up with something new. But considering the general level of program creativity, movies are the superior fare anyway.

Mr. Jones—I should say I did! I shot 13 ducks in one day.

Mr. Smith—Were they wild?

Mr. Jones—Well—no—not exactly; but the farmer, who owned them, was.

You can't build a reputation on what you are going to do.

a $3,000,000 Doris Day movie, or a $150,000 Doris Day television show?

Reflecting in part the increasing costs of TV production, and a sluggish economy, the networks will present fewer program changes than a year ago, and the least since 1962.

Only 34 Revisions

The weekly prime time schedules will show only 34 revisions affecting 27 1/2 hours of programming. In September, 1967, there were 41 changes involving 33 1/2 hours. ABC will have eight new shows: CBS, six; and NBC, seven, including the Seventh Movie Night, on Monday.

The situation comedy, out of vogue a few seasons back, is making a comeback with seven new series. Foremost is the Doris Day show Tuesdays on CBS. Ordinarily, the debut on television of such a popular movie actress would warrant a ticker tape parade. But as far as I can detect, Miss Day's entrance will almost be a secret.

The recent death of her husband, Marty Melcher, may be a contributing factor to her shyness.

In the series, she follows in the steps of so many TV heroines (and heroes), as a widow with two young sons and a housekeeper, who returns to the small southwestern town of her birth and has to make the customary adjustments. A tried and true performer in the tried and tired formula.

Doris Day may be the biggest name but the most publicized — indeed it is already controversial — new show is Julia, also on Tuesdays, on NBC. Starring singer — actress Diahann Carroll, Julia is the first TV series solely about a Negro, in this case a widow (widows at least cross racial lines) with one son.

While a sizable opening night audience is assured, Julia cannot possibly please everyone, or possibly anyone.

Liberals want her to tell Negro life as it really is; network executives want her just to entertain colorlessly; and bigots don't want her at all.

It is in the action-adventure series that television has a real pain. Since the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy the networks have frantically tried to kill as much violence as dramatically possible. Numerically, this season, there will be fewer corpses lying around, fewer punches thrown, fewer shots fired.

While there has always been violence to spare, the networks' overreaction has approached the ridiculous. Gunsmoke is eliminating the shootout trademark that has opened that series for 13 years. Now, James Arness, as Marshal Matt Dillon, will gallop his horse across the screen in the title shot. Next year he will probably sing.

"There has been an effect on everything this side of soft comedy," says Grant Tinker, programming Vice President for Universal Television, "and there's no question that we're talking about as possibly affecting the selection of projects for development. If not affecting the actual selection, they are at least causing people to state conditions under which they will or will not be done."

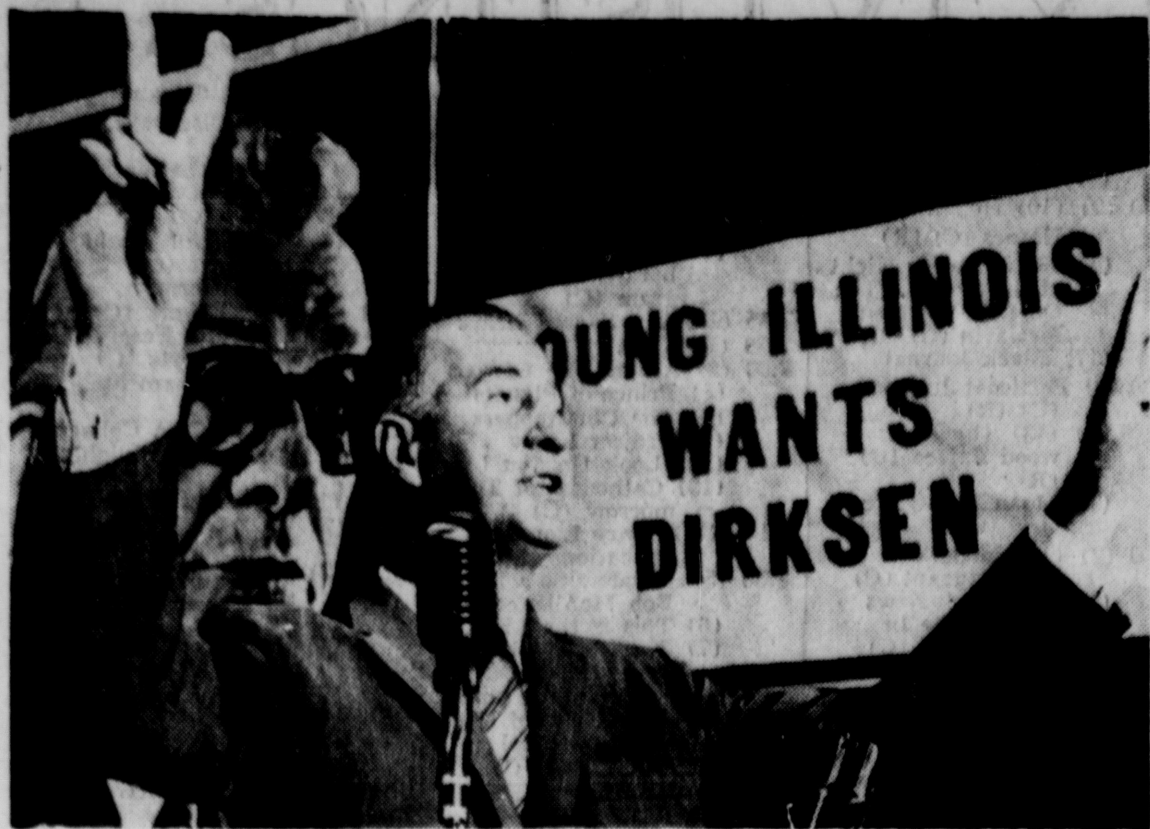

Deaths and violence are no longer funny. Get Smart underwent a reappraisal after its producers reviewed their 26 episodes of last season and found only about three that would pass the current muster of violence.

Copter Crash Kills General; Won Medal of Honor in WW II

By ROBERT D. OHMAN
SAIGON (AP) — Keith L. Ware, who rose from draftee to major general and won the nation's highest combat medal for bravery during World War II, was killed Friday in a flaming helicopter crash.

Ware, 52, commander of the 1st Infantry Division since March, flew out to monitor the progress of his men as they chased North Vietnamese troops in a running battle that had begun the day before on a rubber plantation near Loc Ninh. His men had killed 167 of the enemy in the two-day battle.

Military spokesmen said it was not immediately known whether it was enemy fire that caused Ware's helicopter to crash seven miles south of the Cambodian border and three miles southeast of Loc Ninh.

All eight men aboard were killed, including three members of Ware's staff and four crew members. Names of the others were withheld pending notification of next of kin. All the bodies were recovered.

Ware, formerly Army chief of information at the Pentagon, arrived in Vietnam in December and commanded Saigon's defenses during the enemy's lunar new year offensive beginning Jan. 31.

He was the fifth U.S. general to die in the Vietnam war and the second allied general killed in the last week. South Vietnamese Brig. Gen. Truong Quang An, 35, was killed Sunday when enemy gunners shot down his helicopter, also near the Cambodian border.

Ware, a native of Denver, Colo., was drafted into the Army in 1941 and sent through officer candidate school at Ft.

Benning, Ga. His Medal of Honor, the highest U.S. combat award, comes from the battle Dec. 26, 1944, in which he scouted alone 150 yards ahead of American positions to draw German fire so his pinned-down assault companies could locate the German positions.

Ware, commanding a battalion of the 3rd Infantry Division at the time, was wounded after he returned to his troops. But he picked up an automatic rifle and with 11 of his men and a tank silenced four enemy machine guns. He waved off medical aid until the Germans had been cleared from their hill positions near Sigolsheim, France.

He also won a Silver Star in World War II. Ware is survived by his widow Joyce, and three children who live in Alexandria, Va.

Blame Red Invasion on Dubcek Mistakes

By GENE KRAMER
PRAGUE AP — A member of Czechoslovakia's party hierarchy told the nation Friday night that party chief Alexander Dubcek's reformist regime was guilty of political mistakes and inactivity which probably led to the Soviet-bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"It should have never happened that somebody should have been given enough room to spit at everything we have done over the years," Zdenek Mlynar, a party secretary and member of the ruling Communist presidium declared in a nationwide television address during prime evening time.

He referred to anti-Soviet and anti-Communist criticism permitted after Dubcek started Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive last January.

"We didn't win their confidence and they acted according to their evaluation of the situation" in ordering the invasion Aug. 20, Mlynar said, although he added that he disagreed with the decision to invade.

Mlynar is coming to be regarded as critical of Dubcek within the privacy of the party. But it was not clear whether his speech was aimed at placating the Russians in an effort to get them to withdraw the occupation troops, or amounted to an argument that Dubcek doesn't understand Moscow's thinking and is on another collision course with the Russians.

It was considered significant that Mlynar's television speech came 24 hours after cancellation of a hard-hitting pre-taped TV speech by Dubcek. The Dubcek speech, toned down and broadcast several hours later than scheduled, deleted the party leaders' statements that the return of censorship was a backward step and that anti-Communist forces were at work in other Communist countries besides Czechoslovakia.

Ike Is Progressing In Strength, Vigor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In just four weeks since his seventh serious heart attack, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has regained sufficient strength to read, watch television and dangle his feet over the side of his bed.

Responding to requests for a progress report, his doctors at Walter Reed Army Medical Center said Friday the 77-year-old general has "continued to progress satisfactorily" but has not yet been allowed out of bed.

"However, the general has shown definite gains in strength and vigor," the report said. "Thus, did Eisenhower's remarkable will to live, coupled with experimental medical techniques, bring him back from virtually the brink of death. So far had his condition declined in the first days after his latest attack Aug. 16 that unofficial 16th and 24th of August.

plans for his funeral were made.

Friday's bulletin said in part: "General Eisenhower has continued to progress satisfactorily since the last medical bulletin from this hospital. Because of the extent of the general's underlying coronary heart disease, his activity has been carefully controlled by his physicians."

"Thus he has been allowed to sit up in bed and dangle his feet over the side but has not as yet been permitted out of bed or to attend to any administrative details of his office."

"His appetite is good and he remains on a salt restricted diet. There has been no evidence of heart failure and no further recurrence of the serious heart rhythm disturbance which occurred between the attack Aug. 16 that unofficial 16th and 24th of August.

Nixon Raps Back at HHH Over 'Fosdick' Remarks

By WALTER R. MEARS

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Republican Richard M. Nixon has accused Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey of lowering the tone of the White House campaign with some "rather silly name calling." The name at issue: Fearless Fosdick. That hapless comic strip detective became something of an issue in the presidential race after Humphrey, the Democratic nominee, applied the name to Nixon.

"I am not going to indulge in the kind of stuff—I call it stuff for the moment—that Mr. Humphrey has been indulging in," Nixon said Friday night, "all of this sort of rather silly name calling."

Nixon dealt with the Fosdick matter in an interview after the hour-long, $30,000 telecast, one in a series of big-state TV shows which are a major feature of his presidential strategy.

He said he will kid Humphrey a bit, "hit him hard where I disagree with him on an issue."

"But after all, either he or I is going to be president of the United States and I think to get into some of this business lately of Fearless Fosdick and all that is kind of a little below what a presidential candidate ought to do."

The Humphrey comments which inserted Al Capp's comic strip detective into the presidential campaign were made in Island Beach, N.J., when he was asked about Nixon's statement that doubling the conviction rate would do more to reduce crime than doubling antipoverty funds would.

Play Role of Leader
Humphrey said the President has little to do with doubling the rate of convictions on mainly local crimes, but, he added, "if Mr. Nixon is going to play Fearless Fosdick, that is his privilege. I prefer to play the role of a leader who wants to see both civil order and civil justice."

Humphrey also accused Nixon of blocking Senate confirmation of Abe Fortas, nominated by President Johnson to become U.S. chief justice.

Nixon denied this in his campaign telecast, answering the questions of six Ohio voters.

"There's absolutely no truth in it whatever," he said.

"I will not indicate to the Senate of the United States what it should do or not do in regard to that nomination," Nixon said.

He said 12 Republicans support the nomination, 23 or 24 oppose it, but Democrats control the Senate. If Humphrey could persuade enough of them to back the nomination, it would be approved, Nixon said.

Nixon told newsmen he is opposed to a filibuster on the Fortas nomination. "I oppose any filibuster," he said.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, a Nixon adviser who wants the nomination confirmed, said a firm rejection by the nominee of filibuster tactics in the Fortas case "could be very helpful."

Rejoins Entourage
The Negro GOP senator from Massachusetts rejoined the Nixon entourage in Cleveland, and said he intends to discuss with the nominee the question of enforcing racial desegregation of public schools. Nixon said in a North Carolina television interview that he is opposed to the withholding of federal money from school districts to force compliance with desegregation orders.

Museum Show Should Be a Smash Hit!

The Shakers, a religious sect that settled mostly in the rolling hills of New York and New England more than 200 years ago, literally shook the course of American agriculture, industry, architecture, arts and crafts. Many followed their lead or copied their pioneering efforts in various fields and their effect on this country was great.

Now, the Shaker Museum's third annual Craft Show and Sale at Old Chatham, N.Y. is expected to do some shaking of its own and come through as a smashing success. A recent festival at the Upstate museum drew crowds aplenty and many motored from Ulster County for the unique event; will probably return for the show.

The Craft Show and Sale is slated for Saturday, Sept. 21 from 10 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. at the museum and will feature a number of craftsmen, all superb talents in their fields.

Calligraphy Art

Among them will be Florence Brooks, of Lenox, Mass., who will demonstrate the art of calligraphy (that's writing made lovely) and the illumination of manuscripts. Miss Brooks, a member of the Guild of Book Workers, does her exquisitely fine work with pens cut from goose or turkey quills, water color paints and pure gold leaf and powder.

Philippa Tuttle of Falls Village, Conn. will be on hand to render some of her excellent sketches of visitors to the Craft Show. Miss Tuttle will also make arrangements for future sittings for more detailed portraits.

Mrs. Grace Howell of Scotch Plains, N. J. will demonstrate the very specialized art of glass blowing. Her creations are most delicately made and one can watch her as she starts with a pencil-like piece of glass and see it emerge as the completed object. Needless to say, this demonstration will be one of the highlights of the show as Mrs.

MASSACHUSETTS ARTIST MATHIAS SCHUSTER "paints with weed," as in these pictures composed entirely of slivers of weed. Some of the "paintings" consist of more than 2,000 pieces, and Schuster will be on hand at the Third Annual Shaker Museum Craft Show and Sale at the museum premises on Saturday, Sept. 21 in Old Chatham, N. Y. to demonstrate his craftsmanship.

Howell, at work, is always the center of attraction.

Mathias Schuster of South Egremont, Mass. is without doubt a master of marqueterie. A strange word that some how sounds like an ancient form of self defense, marqueterie is the very unusual art of making pictures from slivers of wood. A wide variety of veneers is used and cut to blend together or contrast to achieve some very spectacular results.

Pine Weaving

Mrs. Gladys Vickery of West Lebanon, N.Y. has woven many fine articles from pine needles. This hobby is followed extensively in Florida but is seldom seen here. Pine needle weaving originated with the Indians and the Indian influence can be seen in the finished products.

Ken Mynter of Claverack, N.Y. will show how he works with leather to make beautiful deerskin gloves, mocassins, etc. Hunters bring pelts to Mynter often to be made into such apparel for the family.

Weaving, Too

Mrs. Ewald Nyquist of

Delmar, N.Y. will demonstrate the fast disappearing art of spinning and weaving; produce gossamer fabrics which will eventually be made into attractive fashions for women.

Richard Chrisjohn, an Oneida Indian, will demonstrate the woodcarving for which he is so well known. He does exceptionally beautiful carvings of Indian masks, bowls and other rare items. His work is of very high quality and Chrisjohn's considered among the best of today's woodcarvers.

Mrs. Harold Hughes of North Chatham, having achieved the distinctive title of "President of the N.Y. Capital District Chapter of the American Branch of the London Embroiderer's Guild," obviously is a craftsman par excellence. Her crewel work is magnificent and she has recently authored a book, "A Syllabus of Filling Stitches." Mrs. Hughes will show visitors any of the myriad stitches used to produce such beautiful pieces as may be made by those with the desire and patience to create such beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Stosiek of Hillsdale, N.Y. will demonstrate the art of fine pottery making and show how they achieve their results by explaining the technique used.

Character Dolls

Constance Spates of Chatham will show some of her fine stuffed dolls that are not of the ordinary variety. Miss Spates creates most unusual character dolls which many doll collectors cherish. They'll also explain how one may go about making similar dolls.

Special guests at this show will be Camphill Village, U.S.A., Inc., of Copake, N. Y. where mentally retarded youngsters are taught productive work to help them make their own way in the world. They produce outstanding enamel trays, bowls, etc., in addition to other items they are taught to make under the direction of a dedicated staff.

The regular Museum admission charge includes a visit to the Craft Show and Sale. There will be no increase in price for this event and there is ample parking space and a picnic area for those who wish to bring their lunch to enjoy on the beautiful Museum premises, featured just this week on TV on the Pete Seeger show.

'Love, Anyone?': Written With Broomlike Strokes

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

When the pre-publication press release came across our desk, it sure enough sounded like OUR kind of book. Alice Wayne, the social director of Kutscher's Country Club — just down the road in raceway land at Monticello, had written an "amusing and unabashed expose of the chic places that attract the restless single in America." So said the public relations man in charge of ballyhooing the book's release.

This "uninhibited report" by our Catskill Mountain neighbor, called "LOVE, Anyone?" was sub-titled "Inside Today's Mating Resorts," and was being published by Bartholomew House, Ltd., of New York City.

So far, so good. We learned long ago that we are never without buncombe in the world and, perverse type that we are, we never tire of reading about it. Maybe this Alice Wayne would be more than expert and witty in letting the air out of the buncombe artists, as she recalled her experiences over the 10 years she has been a social hostess for big Eastern hotels like Kutscher's and Grossinger's... And for clubs, cruises and special social events here and there and everywhere.

High Hopes

It stood to reason she'd seen the action and heard all the stories. If she wasn't too inhibited to put 'em all down at the risk of losing a possible purchaser or two among the Aunt Matildas and Mrs. Grundies of the world — well... Maybe we'd finally find out what REALLY goes on at the beach, bar and bouidoir gatherings of the singles.

We should have known better. A scene like the singles scene encourages a horde of quacks to invade it, sophisticate it and make nonsense of it.

Almost on the heels of the press release, the book itself arrived for reviewing purposes — and since we didn't have to pay $5.95 for it (the going price in book stores), we suppose it would be most unkind of us to accept it free of charge and withhold any kind words at all for either its author or its contents.

Scatological Smut

From its putrescent pink cover, illustrated with a key to a hotel bedroom, to its final philosophic note on page 317 that the mating game is the only game in town, "LOVE, Anyone?" is totally humorless, ever-generalized, and unadulterated pap verging on scatological smut. To place it between hard covers and price it at over $5 must be some kind of all-time low in the history of book publishing. If this is not exactly the type of book one would expect to find in a soft cover and aimed for furtive purchase from under the counter in a 42nd Street pornography shop, it isn't because author Wayne didn't try. She tried real hard — but fate has simply not ordained that she take her place in literature as the female Henry Miller.

Miss Wayne has not missed on cliché. Examples: "Well, hell, she was 40 if she was a day!" "I had died a little there in bed;" "I just wanted a man on lend-lease;" "I'm not hungry for food, I'm starved for love;" "Do you take pretty pills every morning?"

Her platitudes are even more

deadly. Examples: "Men, if you've got a pot, wear cabana suits;" "there are only two kinds of women — those looking for cruelty or those looking for kindness;" "sex to him was an antiseptic thing, something he probably felt he had to endure to keep himself in good health;" "aware that she had taken her birth control pill that morning..."

Indeed, Miss Wayne has raped the English language in this obscene little piece of nothing that tries to pass itself off as a bona fide attempt at literature. If she is more hack than quack, she still paints her literary strokes so crudely and obviously that they seem to be laid on with a broom.

Save Your Money

Our advice to potential readers of "LOVE, Anyone?":

save your money and your time. As for Miss Wayne, she would do well to remember what H.L. Mencken said to James T. Farrell: "If you want to develop further as a writer, there are three things to stay away from. Booze... women... and politics." Miss Wayne's career as a social director has unfortunately put her into to close contact with all three.

Perhaps, if she finds another type of job in a dry state where liquor is illegal, and in a community inhabited only by men who have denounced all forms of government, she may some day become a writer.

At this point in her career, however, she would seem to have a long road to hoe before being able to call herself a writer. Worse, she forces her readers to swallow her incapacities as an elderly peasant swallows Geritol — bottle, cork, label and testimonials. Her doctrine is banal; the tune she plays too old; her words just as hoary; and her capacity for provocative utterance so slight that she has managed to produce only junk reading.

Reading "LOVE, Anyone?" is like attending a harem orgy into which the entire guest list at Kutscher's for the past 10 years has wandered by mistake.

Oh, yes, the book's illustrations are supposed to be humorous and are by Michael Berry, identified on the cover as a "sophisticated artist-reporter whose work has appeared in leading publications." They reminded us of nothing so much as the illustrations that permeated a book called, "Let's Make Mary," that our kid brother smuggled into the house in the dark of night some 20 years ago. It remained successfully hidden under his bed until we found it and squealed on him in revenge for having been forced to mop his far-from-tidy room.

'Entertainers' In Midnite Show

The newly formed "Entertainers' Club" which will be an annual event, representing the major talents in the entertainment field working the Catskills, presented their first show at the Pines Hotel recently.

The show "The Hills are Alive" was written by members of the club to incorporate the talents of the many members and was a tribute to the hotel owners of the area. The show, by personal invitation only, went on as a midnight event.

Danny Winchell, president, pointed out that the show, which will be held at a different hotel each year. Winchell said the aim of "Entertainers" members is to extoll the virtues of the Catskill region wherever their travels may take them and to make it clear that this region is comparable to any resort area in the world. Any entertainers or people associated in the entertainment field who would like to join the club are asked to write "The Entertainers," Catskills Resort Association, 184 Broadway, Monticello, N.Y.

Comment Over Coffee Cups

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

The mellifluous voice of Bill Skilling wise-cracking about the culinary problems of modern woman. Light-hearted laughter by Evie Navy as she speculates on why one man's all-time favorite movie is anathema to another. Theme music in the background chiming in with the tinkle of coffee cups and sometimes pungent comment over the rims of the java jugs. That combination is making for good radio fare in Kingston these days.

Listeners who have been tuning in to "Coffee Break" ever since it started late last spring on WGHQ have grown accustomed to its non-somber programming and its easy-swinging broadcasting format. They may never hear anything as far out as a tuba solo by Harry Thayer, but they will hear "off the cuff" talk about a lot of things a great many people are interested in these days.

If the theory behind "Coffee Break" is not new (remember Dorothy and Dick?), there's a "new sound" to the program. And that sound is audible because the hostess and host of the show, Evie Navy and Bill Skilling follow a sort of "magazine format" approach in discussing art, music, drama, books, movies, and, in particular, the contemporary problems of women in society today.

"Coffee Break" is a relaxed, informal affair that airs each Thursday morning at 9:30. Informal or not, the comment across the coffee cups is often succinct and the Navy-Skilling team have been known to keep things bubbling with an occasional guessing game, played by feeding listeners clues on the topic or special guest of the day.

As a result, this amalgam of music, news, discussion, comedy and anecdotes, might have a friendly argument on the merits of a local art exhibition running next to a discussion about a musical concert, which, in turn, might yield to a summary of the McCarthy movement.

Evie Navy and Bill Skilling work well together, as did the fabled Dorothy Killgallen and her husband, Richard Kollmar, before them. She laughs at his jokes, he chimes in when she leads the way toward a discussion of the "new" music or the two-party system as a facet of U. S. political life. Nor do they avoid a certain amount of criticism, since both believe it to be important for many reasons. If politics and hippies are discussed in aenthusiastic fashion, so, too, are controversial movies and literature.

Reddish-haired Evie Navy usually picks the topic for the day and, for the most part, the program's most prized ingredient is simply mulling the topic over in animated chatter with Skilling, whose voice has been familiar to local radio buffs for years. Only rarely does the team feel the urge to bring in a third party and, the few times this has been done, the guest has been a staff member of the station or someone with the local press.

As it worked out, the fact that Evie and Bill carry the program is its best propaganda "commercial." Unless a guest is a powerful opinion molder, a bon vivant or a natural wit, his presence usually imposes an inhibiting discipline on a show.

"Coffee Break" has managed to avoid that problem and credit must go to the team of Navy and Skilling, who are obviously catnip to one another.

The show's following is mostly among housewives due to the fact that it airs at 9:30 in the a y e m. Nevertheless, its audience is highly partisan and appreciative; has been known to keep praise on the program because it manages to be sprightly without sermonizing and avant-garde without talking down to people.

The reputation "Coffee Break" has established among its morning listeners has been due primarily to Evie Navy, a mother of two and a journalism major from Columbus, Ohio, and to Bill Skilling, whose wide experience in radio, theatrical directing and after-dinner speaking made him a "personality" long ago. When Evie Navy's infectious laughter greets a Skilling riposte on "Coffee Break," the repartee that follows is always humorous, and listenable.

Quick to deny they're "authorities" on the arts, the two, nevertheless, say what they have to say without aggressive scolding; thereby succeed in bringing every day things to people's attention in a humorous way. If Evie and Bill consider themselves "Mr. and Mrs. Average People" with ideas, opinions and views like everyone else, they also feel this qualifies them to comment from that point alone.

Those who have become dedicated "Coffee Break" listeners over recent months would be the first to agree that, mixed in with all that caffeine, Navy and Skilling do indeed have a lot of ideas and convictions and, if they feel they need saying, more than a few housewifely fans are ready, willing and eager to listen.

RAICHO'S "MONKEY" IN HASEGAWA STYLE

"LES PETITES PARISIENNES" is one of the works of the late American painter, Josef Presser. Never without a sketchbook, Presser was an artist who rarely rested; worked unceasingly wherever he was—in museums, restaurants, subways, parks, at dockside and circus, on buses and ferries . . . even at the dentist's office. Before his death last year, he spent three years in Paris; became a familiar sight as he rambled the banks of the Seine with his sketchbook in hand. Some of his most powerful and penetrating studies of life came from this period, and some of them will be on exhibition at the Woodstock Artist Association Gallery, Tinker Street, Woodstock, from today to Sept. 29 in an extensive Memorial Exhibition of his internationally known works.

UCCC: The Japanese Screen

Oshe Maruyama's delightful puppies appear in a buoyant, playful, roly-poly mood. By contrast, his landscape of mountains, forests and sky is golden and serene; touched with the magic sense of infinite depth. Raiche Takahashi's pine speaks of power, age and endurance, but his delightfully fluffy monkey and buzzing bees carries a message for all those who have felt the sting of ambition. Reisui Itoh's gentlemen and ladies of the court are rich in color despite the fact they have been framed within a rigid architectural pattern.

These paintings and a great many more went on view this week as Ulster County Community College opened its 1968-69 Visual Art Series Program at the Stone Ridge campus. And they'll remain on view to the public through Oct. 4 under the title of "Folding Screen Paintings in Traditional Subjects and Techniques by Living Japanese Masters."

This initial exhibit of the year, free to all, is located on the main floor of the John Burroughs Science Building; is open Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.; and was conceived and organized by Ruth Muroff, coordinator of Visual Arts at the college, with the cooperation and assistance of Richard Chalfant, of Chadds Fords, Pa., and Akie Saite, of Kyoto, Japan, who helped obtain the paintings from Japanese artists abroad.

Adding to the uniqueness of the show is the fact that the paintings are all on four-fold, 3 by 6 feet screens, called "Byoba." These folding screens are traditionally used to set aside a section of a room in Japanese homes for partial privacy during sleeping hours. They are also often used as a backdrop to emphasize flower arrangements or tea ceremonies.

Fourteen original screens make up the UCCC show and all have been painted by living Japanese masters. More to the point, each screen was painted especially for this exhibition and represents traditional Japanese style and material.

Ulsterites who afford themselves of the opportunity of viewing this show will find that each screen is an original work of art, signed by the artist and accompanied by an information tag on the artist, his training and honors won, and the philosophy of the particular style and technique in which he excels.

On the Artists

Oshe Mauama's realistic style is represented with screens glorifying playful puppies, soft landscapes, wild geese, bamboo studies and pine trees. The superb brushwork of Raicho Takahashi has been brought to the fore in his "Monkey and Bees," Zen-based designs, still lifes of fruit and flowers, and "Crane and Cockscombs." Leaping smelt and the rush of water have been caught by Reisui Itoh, who is also represented with "Iris" and "scene from the Tale of Genji." The art of Calligraphy is reflected in works by Shigai Azuma.

According to coordinator Muroff, the Chinese have an old saying, "Art is judged by ear." If so, it hardly seems to pertain to this show, which is totally appealing to the eye. The current show at the UCCC campus is ample proof that present day Japanese artists are charged with a great tradition, and their folding screen art demonstrates that there is no substitute for technique, dedication and mastery of materials if an artist truly aspires to transmit abstract ideas despite the struggle involved.

Comment Over Coffee Cups

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

The mellifluous voice of Bill Skilling wise-cracking about the culinary problems of modern woman. Light-hearted laughter by Evie Navy as she speculates on why one man's all-time favorite movie is anathema to another. Theme music in the background chiming in with the tinkle of coffee cups and sometimes pungent comment over the rims of the java jugs. That combination is making for good radio fare in Kingston these days.

Listeners who have been tuning in to "Coffee Break" ever since it started late last spring on WGHQ have grown accustomed to its non-somber programming and its easy-swinging broadcasting format. They may never hear anything as far out as a tuba solo by Harry Thayer, but they will hear "off the cuff" talk about a lot of things a great many people are interested in these days.

If the theory behind "Coffee Break" is not new (remember Dorothy and Dick?), there's a "new sound" to the program. And that sound is audible because the hostess and host of the show, Evie Navy and Bill Skilling follow a sort of "magazine format" approach in discussing art, music, drama, books, movies, and, in particular, the contemporary problems of women in society today.

"Coffee Break" is a relaxed, informal affair that airs each Thursday morning at 9:30. Informal or not, the comment across the coffee cups is often succinct and the Navy-Skilling team have been known to keep things bubbling with an occasional guessing game, played by feeding listeners clues on the topic or special guest of the day.

As a result, this amalgam of music, news, discussion, comedy and anecdotes, might have a friendly argument on the merits of a local art exhibition running next to a discussion about a musical concert, which, in turn, might yield to a summary of the McCarthy movement.

Evie Navy and Bill Skilling work well together, as did the fabled Dorothy Killgallen and her husband, Richard Kollmar, before them. She laughs at his jokes, he chimes in when she leads the way toward a discussion of the "new" music or the two-party system as a facet of U. S. political life. Nor do they avoid a certain amount of criticism, since both believe it to be important for many reasons. If politics and hippies are discussed in aesthetically fashion, so, too, are controversial movies and literature.

NBC Kicks Off for Fall This Sunday

NBC will be the first of the three major networks to unveil its mixed bag of goodies this fall and it's got seven new-season building blocks in its lineup.

Beginning this Sunday, NBC will spend an entire week premiering six new prime-time evening shows, a new, early Sunday evening show, and the returning, updated, old faithfuls. ABC (its fall season was previewed in this column recently) and CBS (it's new series will be dealt with next week) get into action with their new shows beginning Sept. 22.

The seven new releases on Phyllis Diller Show," set for 10 p.m. Sunday, with Miss Diller portraying herself on the hour-long program featuring top guest vocalists, dancers, actors and comedy personalities. "Julia" is the Tuesday night entry and it's the story of a beautiful young Negro widow's efforts to make a new life for herself and her little boy in Los Angeles. Broadway star Diahann Carroll stars as the widow of an Air Force captain, killed over Vietnam.

Mystery and Suspense

Wednesdays bring "The Outsider," with Darren McGavin as a busy private investigator in an hour-long mystery-suspense series. McGavin is David Ross, a rugged loner whose beat is Los Angeles and whose car is 10 years old and dented. "The Name of the Game" is NBC's big one and it's also TV's first motion picture series. It stars Gene Barry, Robert Stack and Tony Franciosa; will be offered for 90 minutes Friday evenings; features dramas taking viewers behind the scenes of an international publishing empire.

"Adam-12," a half-hour weekly drama depicting the life of the Los Angeles Police Department uniformed officer, starring Martin Milner and Kent McCord, first airs Saturday, Sept. 21 at 7:30 p.m. Milner plays senior officer Peter Malloy and his partner in the cruiser car, designated as Adam-12, is rookie officer Jim Reed, as played by McCord, in this "Dragnet" on wheels.

"The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," also on Saturday nights, tells of a young widow and her two children who move into an old seacoast house and find it still occupied by its former owner, a 19th century sea captain. Hope Lange is the young widow and Edward Mulhare is Captain Gregg, the ghost. "The New Adventures of Huck Finn" debuts Sunday nights at 7 p.m.; is the first weekly TV series combining live-action performance with animation. Each episode has a live prologue with live actors as Huck, Beck and Tom encountering evil Injun Joe. As the trio flees from Joe, they are launched into a fresh adventure in which the villain always becomes an animated version of Joe.

In addition to its new series, NBC is planning more than 100 entertainment and news specials for 1968-69, including Election Night coverage. The network will also run "big" movies on Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays in the p.m.

MORE THAN ONCE in the week just past, TV excelled in presenting programs of interest and educational value. An in-depth study of "Czechoslovakia, The Wayward Satellite," on Channel 13 Monday was set against a backdrop of Soviet tanks and world-shaking headlines. It admirably assessed the course of the Czech reform movement in films from Germany, Britain and Czechoslovakia on student revolts, economic pressures for changes, the ouster of Novotny and the liberalizing influence of Dubcek.

Excellent, too, was the repeat

JULIA—Diahann Carroll has the stellar role in "Julia," tale of a widowed nurse, in NBC's fall line-up, Tuesday nights at 8:30. Scene stealer Marc Copage plays her young son, Corey.

VERY STURDY GHOST is Edward Mulhare, in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," NBC's speaker on Saturday evenings at 8:30, in the fall's new series. Hope Lange is cast as Mrs. Muir.

of "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" on ABC Tuesday. It combined the past and the future without intending to do so since the forerunners of coming explorative devices and techniques were used to document the life processes of giant sea turtles which predate even the dinosaurs. Fine, too, was the CBS program, "From Chekhov, With Love," on Wednesday. Sir John Gielgud did indeed perform a labor of love in documenting the life of his favorite author, famed Russian dramatist Chekhov.

And a fine herald of the new TV season, NBC's "On Stage" series, debuted Thursday evening with "Certain Honorable Men," a drama wrenched right out of recent headlines. Written tautly and realistically by Rod Serling, it was an excellent portrait of an aging Congressman and old-line politician with superior performances by Van Heflin, Peter Fonda, Pat Hingle and Hiram Sherman.

THE PICK OF THE PROGRAMS for the week ahead:

Today, Sat., Sept. 14

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS (ABC, 2:15-3:45 p.m.). Floyd Patterson challenges Jimmy Ellis for the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight championship.

NCAA FOOTBALL (ABC, 3:45-7 p.m.). Tennessee vs. Georgia in the season's opener from Knoxville.

Sunday, September 15

NEW ADVENTURES OF HUCKLEBERRY FIN (NBC, 7 p.m.). Michael Shea as Huck Finn, Kevin Schultz as Tom Sawyer and Lu Ann Haslam as Becky Thatcher find themselves in a forest inhabited by leprechauns.

LOMBARDI (CBS, 8 p.m.). All about Pro-Football Coach Vince Lombardi, who took over a lackluster Green Bay Packers team in 1959 and built a dynasty of champions.

BARBRA STREISAND: A HAPPENING IN CENTRAL PARK (CBS, 9 p.m.). Taped at last summer's concert at the Sheep Meadow in Manhattan's Central Park, with Barbra singing for 135,000 people.

PHYLLIS DILLER SHOW (NBC, 10 p.m.). Miss Diller welcomes Johnny Carson, Rowan and Martin, and Sonny and Cher to this first show of the season.

Monday, Sept. 16

ROWAN AND MARTIN'S LAUGH-IN (NBC, 8 p.m.). Our favorite rapidfire artists are back with the program's regulars.

NFL FOOTBALL (CBS, 9:30 p.m.). Los Angeles Rams kick off their season against St. Louis Cardinals at St. Louis.

Tuesday, Sept. 17

JULIA (NBC, 8:30 p.m.). Diahann Carroll as Julia Baker, lovely young widow attempting to make a new life for herself and her six-year-old son.

Wednesday, Sept. 18

AFRICA ADVENTURE (Channel 17, 8 p.m.). First segment of the award-winning documentary praised as "a magnificent, breathtaking study of the vast 'have-not' continent." Second segment will be aired Thursday, Sept. 19 at the same time, when the color pageantry, cities, scenes and patterns of an emerging Communist are captured in a remarkable program.

Friday, Sept. 20

SPEAKING FREELY (Channel 17, 9 p.m.). All about the anti-ballistic missile, what it is, whether it really protects us, and whether the Chinese Communists could penetrate such a system. (Compiled by TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

Unusual Casting

NEW YORK (UPI)—Betty Ann Grove represents one of the more unusual instances of casting on Broadway this season. She plays Joel Gray's mother in the hit musical "George M" although she is, in fact, younger than Gray in real life.

"Everyone knows it's make-believe so I don't mind," said Miss Grove who started her show business career as a high school fashion commentator in her native Cambridge, Mass., and has since appeared as a singer and entertainer in many television shows.

After the run of the show Miss Grove has two other careers open to her. She directed and choreographed a number of highly praised shows for Spanish television when she was residing in Madrid where her husband was in advertising. She also ran one of the Spanish capital's better known restaurants.

75 Waugh Works At Paltz Bank

Edwin A. Ulrich, of Hyde Park, is exhibiting 75 works from his noted collection of Frederick J. Waugh paintings at the New Paltz Savings Bank now through Oct. 25.

Ulrich's collection is the most complete single collection of the work of an important American artist and is the largest Waugh collection in the world. He has accumulated more than 350 oil paintings, watercolors, pastels and pencil drawings which span Waugh's entire career.

The public has never seen many of the paintings on display at the New Paltz Savings Bank, since they are being exhibited for the first time.

The trustees, officers and staff of the New Paltz Savings Bank expressed gratitude to Ulrich for making this exhibition possible. The public is invited to visit the bank and see this fine collection of paintings.

Broadway Check List

By JACK GAVER
 UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The 1968-69 Broadway theater season begins rolling in earnest this month.

Actually, the first production of the season was "Lovers" on July 2 at the Vivian Beaumont Theater in Lincoln Center, where the Brian Friel play starring Art Carney became a big hit. It will be transferred to the Music Box Theater Sept. 17 to continue its run.

And the APA Repertory Company began its activities early this month at its Lyceum Theater, but its presentations of "Pantagloize" and "The Show-Off" are simply short return runs for two of last season's productions.

Castro and Cuba

The first new play after "Lovers" will be "The Cuban Thing" by Jack Gelber, which is scheduled to open Sept. 17 at Henry Miller's Theater. This is a drama dealing with the effect of the Castro revolution on a Cuban family.

Other productions scheduled for the rest of September and for October include:

"Lovers and Other Strangers," "And Now, Noel Coward," "Woman Is My Idea," "The Man in the Glass Booth," "The Great White Hope," "The Cocktail Party," "Her First Roman," "Misanthrope," "The Megillah," "The Flip Side," "We Bombed in New Haven," "Wind in the Sassafras," "Maggie Flynn" and "A Mother's Kisses."

New Venture

In addition, during that period, a new venture called the Playwright's Repertory will open for business Sept. 30 at the Billy Rose Theater under sponsorship of playwright Edward Albee and his producer-partner, Richard Barr. They plan a six-week fall season of four rotating programs that include two new short Albee plays, "Box" and "Quotations from Chairman Mao Tse-tung."

The three other bills consist of revivals of Albee's "The American Dream" and "The Death of Bessie Smith," Samuel Beckett's "Krapp's Last Tape" and Albee's "The Zoo Story" and, finally, Beckett's "Happy Days." The engagement is through Nov. 9.

Production is indicated to be at about the pace that has prevailed in recent years—a total of from 50 to 55 Broadway productions over a whole season. So far, only five productions have been announced for November, but there should be additional ones emerging in the next few weeks.

Ginger Is "Mame"

The juicy title role of the musical "Mame" for the London production has gone to Ginger Rogers. The star's last New York assignment was as replacement in the original company of "Hello, Dolly!" in which she played for more than a year.

"Mame" will have another production late in December at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., and Susan Hayward will star in that one.

Meanwhile, "Mame," with Janis Paige at the helm, goes along happily at the Winter Garden in New York, well into its third year.

Ginger Is "Mame"

The juicy title role of the musical "Mame" for the London production has gone to Ginger Rogers. The star's last New York assignment was as replacement in the original company of "Hello, Dolly!" in which she played for more than a year.

"Mame" will have another production late in December at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., and Susan Hayward will star in that one.

Meanwhile, "Mame," with Janis Paige at the helm, goes along happily at the Winter Garden in New York, well into its third year.

HUVREP School

Hudson Valley Repertory School of the Theatre has resumed classes in acting and related theatre arts under the instruction of Harold Baldrige, artistic director of the company. Two classes are offered for area residents. A class for children and teen-agers is held every Saturday morning from 10:30 to 12:30; includes creative dramatics through improvisation and scene study, and speech analysis for improvement. Special attention is paid to the creative ideas of the student, correction of common speech errors, and general speech and voice improvement. The first class is slated today at the Woodstock Playhouse with tuition charged for the 10-week session. The adult class will be held Tuesday evenings from 8:30 to 11 p.m. and will involve scene study of modern and stylistic plays as a method of investigating the more complex problems of the actor, character acting, new forms in playwriting, and a reinvestigation of basic acting technique as applied to various periods and playwrights. The first regular class of this 10 week session will be held Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 54B Tinker Street, Woodstock, with tuition charged.

MOVIES

Violence Is Bigger Than Ever

THE LEGEND OF LYLAH CLARE. What's it all about, Lylah? It's about a bright new discovery being made over in the mold of a legendary Hollywood star whom she uncannily resembles. And, from there on in, her life takes on the same lurid pattern as that of the dead woman.

The original Lylah, it turns out, was a screen star and sex goddess and—like Harlow and Monroe and Valentino and James Dean—has become a legend since a fatal accident which left her fans bereft. The accident happened some 20 years ago but her director husband, the great Lewis Zarkan, has never made a film since then.

Suddenly we have him being persuaded to come out of retirement when his agent reports that he's found an almost identical unknown to do the long-hoped-for picture of Lylah's life. Like Lylah, the new girl, Elsa, falls in love with Lewis. It matters not that he has a ruthless temperament and directs her with jibes and sneers.

Using flashbacks, the movie—now at the Mayfair here—shows that Lylah No. 1 had many other loves, male and female, and in resurrecting her image, on and off screen, Elsa (or Lylah No. 2) follows her pattern exactly. Physically and emotionally, she becomes the scandalous Lylah Clare, and—no surprise to viewers—comes to a similar end.

Although the settings for this unlikely tale are lush and handsome, the theme is a murky melange in innuendo about the morals of past movie queens and the opportunism underlying Hollywood glamour. Kim Novak plays the dual role of the two girls whose lives are dominated by Peter Finch as Lewis Zarkan, surely the biggest egoist in screen history. Poor Peter, who made millions of females hate him for his egoism in dealing with Anne Bancroft in "The Pumpkin Eater" has been typecast again in "Lylah" as a man who can't decide whether he loves himself or Lylah more.

DEADFALL. A death-defying drop from a balcony or roof to a window ledge below, stopping dead with a grip of a hand on the few inches of mortar jutting out from the wall of the house. This sudden swoop is practiced by cat burglars, to enter heavily guarded mansions in search of jewels. It's called a "Deadfall," and that's the title of the film now on screen at Kingston's Community Theatre.

The high-tension psychological thriller stars Michael Caine as catman Henry Clarke. His accomplices in crime are Giovanna Ralli and Eric Portman. The offbeat movie in which recklessly audacious coups are pulled off, relies as much on the psychological conflicts and tensions of its main characters as it does on its story of jewel thieving for its excitement. As the personal emotions of the trio of thieves steadily mount to a perilous pitch, the predictable end comes in a final and shattering holocaust of violence.

HAMMERHEAD. Vince Edwards, TV's Ben Casey, plays an undercover agent, Charles Wood, assigned by the British government to prevent the theft of vitally important missile plans by an international arch-villain named Hammerhead. If he sounds like a near-relative to Goldfinger he is. Hammerhead is an elderly psychopath who collects pornography, so Hood, to open contact with him and discover his plans, offers to sell him some rare erotica. That's when the agent finds himself and his kooky, sexy, little companions (Judy Geeson, no longer the innocent schoolgirl of "To Sir With Love") caught up in a world of peculiar, sadistic characters, mostly intent on vicious assault. The thriller whirls from one situation to another and through one Portuguese coastal city to another, with the quota of beauties, bullets and brawn that one might expect. It's on the triple bill at the 9-W Drive-In tonight and tomorrow night only.

TORTURE GARDEN. In this British horror film, also at the 9-W, Dr. Diabolo (Burgess Meredith), a glib barker at a carnival side show, invites five passersby to have a glimpse of their futures. They are introduced to a statuesque figure, the Goddess of Destiny, holding a large pair of shining shears that has hypnotic power. Dr. Diabolo assures his little audience that the views she will present of things to come will show them nothing but what is in their own hearts, and are only forewarnings of what could happen. Four of the thrill seekers are hypnotized in turn, and each in his individual session sees what the worst in himself could lead to, in a parade of torture, witchcraft, and murder. The succession of eerie, gory plots has moments of gruesome suspense. Still a third first run horror show at the 9-W this weekend is "The Vengeance of Fu Manchu."

THE UNSINKABLE MOLLY BROWN; THE DIRTY DOZEN. These two "oldies" are now running at the Sunset Drive-In on Route 28. "Molly Brown" is a musical set in the old west and starring Debbie Reynolds as the millionairess who didn't go down on the Titanic. "Dirty Dozen" is a violent World War II story about a special mission into Germany by some Army misfits turned into heroes and led by Lee Marvin.

491. This Swedish film is a stark screen portrait of rebellious youth in the modern world and is now playing through Tuesday at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema. Explosively realistic, "491" is an incisive drama of delinquent youth's violent struggle between good and evil and between the weak and the strong in the 1960's. Title of the film is taken from Christ's commandment to forgive a sinner not a mere seven times, but 70 times seven, which comes to 490. This sin that follows the 491st, is said to be unforgivable. It is the general quest to commit that unforgivable sin by a group of juvenile delinquents with which the story is concerned. Without doubt and in spite of its often savage brutality, this is the best film on youth psychiatry ever produced. Not just a shocker, it focuses on youthful offenders as the subjects of a sociological experiment in crime research and rehabilitation, is a virtual textbook on the problems of counseling delinquents, who are bitter and viciously anti-social.

If some of the scenes portray depraved acts, every such scene is pointed toward gaining insight into some painful truths of human behavior in contemporary society. The film has an Ingmar Bergmanlike quality; was directed by his protege, Vilgot Sjoman.

THE DEVIL'S BRIGADE. Another World War II movie, this one stars William Holden, Cliff Robertson and Vince Edwards; is now playing at the Lyceum in Red Hook.

THE ODD COUPLE. One of the finest comedies to come out of Hollywood this year, the movie stars Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau; is now showing at the Rosendale Theater. (PREVIEWED AND REVIEWED BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

MOVIES

Violence Is Bigger Than Ever

THE LEGEND OF LYLAH CLARE. What's it all about, Lylah? It's about a bright new discovery being made over in the mold of a legendary Hollywood star whom she uncannily resembles. And, from there on in, her life takes on the same lurid pattern as that of the dead woman.

The original Lylah, it turns out, was a screen star and sex goddess and—like Harlow and Monroe and Valentino and James Dean—has become a legend since a fatal accident which left her fans bereft. The accident happened some 20 years ago but her director husband, the great Lewis Zarkan, has never made a film since then.

Suddenly we have him being persuaded to come out of retirement when his agent reports that he's found an almost identical unknown to do the long-hoped-for picture of Lylah's life. Like Lylah, the new girl, Elsa, falls in love with Lewis. It matters not that he has a ruthless temperament and directs her with jibes and sneers.

Using flashbacks, the movie—now at the Mayfair here—shows that Lylah No. 1 had many other loves, male and female, and in resurrecting her image, on and off screen, Elsa (or Lylah No. 2) follows her pattern exactly. Physically and emotionally, she becomes the scandalous Lylah Clare, and—no surprise to viewers—comes to a similar end.

Although the settings for this unlikely tale are lush and handsome, the theme is a murky melange in innuendo about the morals of past movie queens and the opportunism underlying Hollywood glamour. Kim Novak plays the dual role of the two girls whose lives are dominated by Peter Finch as Lewis Zarkan, surely the biggest egoist in screen history. Poor Peter, who made millions of females hate him for his egoism in dealing with Anne Bancroft in "The Pumpkin Eater" has been typecast again in "Lylah" as a man who can't decide whether he loves himself or Lylah more.

Big E: International

Tempo's been devoting a fair amount of space in recent weeks to the Eastern States Exposition, holding forth now through Sept. 22 at West Springfield, Mass. Even though it's a little far afield of our circulation area, we've plugged the Big E because it is one of the finest expos in the east and because it is easily accessible from Ulster and Dutchess Counties.

Not only does it have a carnival flavor in its colorful midway, a historical appeal in its Storowtown Village of 12 Revolutionary era houses and stores, a wealth of arts and crafts demonstrations, musical attractions of every conceivable type, and educational and entertainment exhibits ranging from three-dimensional scale models of New England business districts to the cascading streams of the colored Dancing Waters, but it is one of the nation's select International Fairs.

This year five nations will be

Grape Festival

One event Tempo was sorry it missed last fall was the annual Naples Grape Festival in Naples, N.Y. The Festival has long been hailed as an occasion with provincial and natural color and, this year, we're bound and determined to go.

Perhaps some of our readers would also like to make the trip. If so, you're invited to attend the 1968 Grape Festival at Naples on Saturday, Sept. 28. Among the day-long festivities will be a parade, floats, interestingly arranged wine and art exhibits, and a flea market for antique enthusiasts.

And, naturally, since Naples is the home of Widmer wines, the firm's vineyards and wine cellars will be very much a part of the atmosphere of the day. Festival visitors will have an opportunity of touring both.

The charm of this particular Festival has become legendary and, for that reason alone, the event would seem to be one well worth attending. Reserve the date on your calendar right now if you feel like welcoming fall with a special occasion.

An Archaeological Wonder in the Tradition of the Sphinx

OPUS 40, sculptor Harvey Fite's one-man labor of love over four decades, will be the site of a unique fund-raising event for the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre on Sunday, Sept. 29. Fite's famous complexity of gently graded ramps and terraces, bridges and moats, platforms and passageways, staircases and sunken swimming pools, has been built single-handedly by the sculptor from the shambles of an old bluestone quarry in High Woods. To benefit HUVREP, it is being opened to the public for the first and last time on Sept. 29 only, from 12 noon to 5 p. m. Only artists, collectors, geologists and close friends have been privileged to view the majestic and overwhelming craftsmanship of Fite in the past. And overwhelming it is with its natural backdrop of Catskill peaks, its rustic ramps of rough bluestone rising without reliance on mortar, its stunning displays at Fite's own outdoor sculpture pieces. Tickets for the tour of Opus 40 for both adults and children can be obtained in advance by writing to P. O. Box 268, Woodstock.

Drive Into Autumn Colorama

Brilliant autumn leaves, orange pumpkins and sweet apple cider are only a few weeks away in New York State.

And as those of us who live here know, all of New York shares in the autumn foliage spectacle. Wherever you drive on an autumn holiday, you'll find a variety of awe-inspiring scenes and vistas of colorful beauty. For many people, this is a rewarding time for a leisurely and relaxed approach to motoring.

This is the time to take the side roads instead of the expressways and to really look at the country you're passing through. Perhaps it is also the time to take the opportunity of doing some of the things you've long thought of doing but never found time for—things like reading the historical markers beside the road, or detouring down side roads to admire a famous view or visit a historic spot. Certainly, our state has more historic spots than you can shake a Revolutionary War textbook at.

Time to Relax

There's something about autumn that spells relaxation, probably because it's the last chance most of us get to relax before plunging into the rigors of winter. Fall vacations can be the best vacations of all, even if they come only as a couple of long, leisurely weekends.

It could be fun to spend a weekend at a vacation community or resort right here in Ulster or in a nearby county. Now that such spas have passed the bustle and commotion of the peak season and a slower pace prevails, hosts are in a position to give guests more individual attention. That's what we'd call a vacation bonus of autumn.

More than a few area residents feel that autumn is the most delightful of all seasons in New York. Then and only then are the days pleasant and not too warm. The skies seem bluer than ever, the clouds fleecier and whiter, and there's a mellow sense of ripeness that makes fall a colorful pageant that appeals to all the senses.

Flaming Foliage

While the flaming foliage change is often unpredictable, the spectacle begins in the north country where the forests or the Adirondacks and the valley of the St. Lawrence are touched with gold and crimson around the first week in October. Slowly the color moves south, invading the hazy blue peaks of our own Catskills and the valleys of the Hudson and the Mohawk. Westward it spreads, past the Finger Lakes, and the Genesee Gorge to the foaming cataract of Niagara, eastward to surf-swept Long Island, until the entire New York countryside has been touched with the glowing brilliance of the most colorful of the four seasons.

Even so, the foliage change is as unpredictable as the weather upon which it depends. From the first color in the state to the last is usually about four weeks and it takes about two weeks for the cycle to be completed in a particular area. At its peak of color, fall foliage lasts only three or four days. But it's a pretty sage guess that it'll begin in the northern mountains the first of October and reach other areas two or three weeks later.

Tempo readers interested in driving to where the foliage is, or in a weekend vacation at an off-season hotel or motel where discounts may run to 10 and 20 per cent, may also be interested in writing for a copy of "Autumn Colorama in New York State," a folder that describes the annual color change of forest leaves and includes suggestions for fall holidays in the state. It's available through the New York State Department of Commerce, 112 State Street, Albany, N.Y. 12207, as are weekly bulletins on the color change progress and that sometimes chancy sight, peak color.

Hudson Scenes In Gould Show

The works of artist Paul Gould are now on display in the Library of Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh. The one-man show features scenes from the Hudson Valley area with a few seascapes and monographs, and will continue through Sept. 30.

The Gould family operates the Bethlehem Art Gallery located between Vails Gate and Salisbury Mills. Paul's father,

Paul who founded the gallery, has been his principal teacher. All the members of the family participate in the gallery activities, and Paul works as an art instructor during the summer. During the winter he attends Marist College in Poughkeepsie as a junior majoring in History. He hopes to combine his interest in the artistic beauty of the Hudson Valley with its historic significance and his own history background.

Some of the Gould paintings are on loan from private collections; however, most are for sale. The public is cordially invited to view this exhibit during the regular Library hours: 8:30 to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday; 8:30 to 5 p.m., Friday; 9 to 12, and 1 to 5 p.m., Saturday, and 12 to 4 on Sunday.

'ARTORAMA'

Girl Scouts of Ulster County Council will have a chance to exhibit works of art in 10 categories at the council-wide Artorama scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 22 at Camp Wendy, Wallkill, Ulster County Girl Scout Camp.

A judging of all entries from the 13 Neighborhoods of the Council will be made and ribbons awarded in each of the 10 categories on Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior age levels.

Many badges and projects in the Hand Arts offered ideas, making it possible for the girls to participate in the council-wide event while fulfilling badge requirements at the same time.

Categories being judged are oil; water color tempera, finger painting; pastel, chalk, crayon; black and white; photography; collage; ceramics and sculpture including clay, wire, wood carving, paper mache and mobiles; prints which include stencil, woodblock, linoleum block, stamp printing; creative stitchery; crafts from nature materials.

Girl Scouts, parents, campers, friends, all are invited to attend the event which will take place between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Judges will be A.E. Woolley and Mrs. George Wexler, of New Paltz, and Mrs. Alexander McKetrick and Mrs. Robert Wirth, of Kingston.

Committee in charge of the event includes Mrs. George Erbstein, Stone Ridge, chairman, Mrs. James Wolford, Saugerties, Mrs. Hubert Richter, Kingston, Mrs. John Murdoch, Woodstock.

Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts which is sponsoring the event is one of the 14 member agencies of the Ulster County Community Chest.

At Lincoln Center

NEW YORK (AP) — The Repertory Theater of Lincoln Center has announced the first three plays for its 1968-69 season. They are "A Cry of Players" with Anne Bancroft, "King Lear," starring Lee J. Cobb, and "In the Matter of J. Robert Oppenheimer," which had its premiere on German television in 1964.

There will be a fourth and final play, to be announced later.

An Archaeological Wonder in the Tradition of the Sphinx

OPUS 40, sculptor Harvey Fite's one-man labor of love over four decades, will be the site of a unique fund-raising event for the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre on Sunday, Sept. 29. Fite's famous complexity of gently graded ramps and terraces, bridges and moats, platforms and passageways, staircases and sunken swimming pools, has been built single-handedly by the sculptor from the shambles of an old bluestone quarry in High Woods. To benefit HUVREP, it is being opened to the public for the first and last time on Sept. 29 only, from 12 noon to 5 p. m. Only artists, collectors, geologists and close friends have been privileged to view the majestic and overwhelming craftsmanship of Fite in the past. And overwhelming it is with its natural backdrop of Catskill peaks, its rustic ramps of rough bluestone rising without reliance on mortar, its stunning displays at Fite's own outdoor sculpture pieces. Tickets for the tour of Opus 40 for both adults and children can be obtained in advance by writing to P. O. Box 268, Woodstock.

Drive Into Autumn Colorama

Brilliant autumn leaves, ripeness that makes fall a colorful pageant that appeals to all the senses.

Flaming Foliage

And as those of us who live here know, all of New York shares in the autumn foliage spectacle. Wherever you drive on an autumn holiday, you'll find a variety of awe-inspiring scenes and vistas of colorful beauty. For many people, this is a rewarding time for a leisurely and relaxed approach to motoring.

This is the time to take the side roads instead of the expressways and to really look at the country you're passing through. Perhaps it is also the time to take the opportunity of doing some of the things you've long thought of doing but never found time for—things like reading the historical markers beside the road, or detouring down side roads to admire a famous view or visit a historic spot. Certainly, our state has more historic spots than you can shake a Revolutionary War textbook at.

Time to Relax

There's something about autumn that spells relaxation, probably because it's the last chance most of us get to relax before plunging into the rigors of winter. Fall vacations can be the best vacations of all, even if they come only as a couple of long, leisurely weekends.

It could be fun to spend a weekend at a vacation community or resort right here in Ulster or in a nearby county. Now that such spas have passed the bustle and commotion of the peak season and a slower pace prevails, hosts are in a position to give guests more individual attention. That's what we'd call a vacation bonus of autumn.

More than a few area residents feel that autumn is the most delightful of all seasons in New York. Then and only then are the days pleasant and not too warm. The skies seem bluer than ever, the clouds fleecier and whiter, and there's a mellow sense of

to surf-swept Long Island, until the entire New York countryside has been touched with the glowing brilliance of the most colorful of the four seasons.

Even so, the foliage change is as unpredictable as the weather upon which it depends. From the first color in the state to the last is usually about four weeks and it takes about two weeks for the cycle to be completed in a particular area. At its peak of color, fall foliage lasts only three or four days. But it's a pretty sage guess that it'll begin in the northern mountains the first of October and reach other areas two or three weeks later.

Tempo readers interested in driving to where the foliage is, or in a weekend vacation at an off-season hotel or motel where discounts may run to 10 and 20 per cent, may also be interested in writing for a copy of "Autumn Colorama in New York State," a folder that describes the annual color change of forest leaves and includes suggestions for fall holidays in the state. It's available through the New York State Department of Commerce, 112 State Street, Albany, N.Y. 12207, as are weekly bulletins on the color change progress and that sometimes chancey sight, peak color.

Best Equipped Of All Studies

Last spring the Art Students League of Woodstock and New York opened a new branch for direct metal sculpture and plastic sculpture, called the Long Island City Sculpture School. Housed in a fireproof, brilliantly lighted factory on Crescent Street, it is within three blocks of the subway at Queensboro Plaza.

The Long Island City Sculpture School is undoubtedly the best equipped sculpture studio in New York City. It is equipped for every conceivable kind of work. There are electric arc welders, oxyacetylene torches, welding booths, combination metal and band saws, soldering irons, a crucible for casting bronze and non-ferrous metals, anvils, metal work benches; in sum a concentration of the latest kinds of tools and equipment.

William King, the well-known sculptor, has been added to the League's staff, and will give the morning class, beginning Monday. He is an expert carver, modeler, caster, riveter, assembler, and all-round worker in metals and plastics. In the afternoon the metal sculpture class will be given by John Hovannes, veteran sculptor and League instructor, under whose direction, the Long Island City Sculpture School came into being.

Teaching Additions

The other additions to the teaching staff of 48 well-known artist-instructors are Barbara Adrian, Edmond Casarella and Paul Resika.

Barbara Adrian exhibits regularly at the Baner Gallery in New York, and in 1968 won the Benjamin Altman Figure Prize at the National Academy of Design's Annual Exhibition.

Edmond Casarella has an international reputation as a printmaker, sculptor and painter, and has been on the staff of Cooper Union for some years.

Paul Resika is noted for his landscapes. He has had numerous one man shows, won prizes and awards, and exhibited internationally. He exhibits regularly at the Peridot Gallery in New York City.

Complete Roster

Here is the complete roster of current instructors at the League, during the 1968-1969 Regular Session:

Barbara Adrian, Charles Alston, Lennart Anderson, Rudolf Baranik, Will Barnett, Robert Brackman, Raymond Breinin, Edmond Casarella, Mario Cooper, Jose De Creeft, Ben Cunningham, Gregory Lamonica, Sidney E. Dickinson, William F. Draper, Thomas Fogarty, Arthur J. Foster, Dagmar Freuchen, Henry Gasser, Marshall Glasier, Maccabi Greenfield, John Groth, Robert Beverly Hale, Agnes Hart, of Woodstock, John Hovannes, Morris Kantor, Ethel Katz, Nathaniel Kaz, Steven Kidd, William King, Edward Laning, Jacob Lawrence, Julian Levi, Kay Lewis, Andrew Lukach, Vincent Malta, Frank Mason, Earl Mayan, Richard Mayhew, Seong Moy, Samuel Edmund Oppenheim, Robert Philipp, Larry Poons, Paul Resika, Patricia Sherwood, Theodore Stamos, Willa Trafton and Vaclav Vytlačil.

The Art Students League

offers classes in Painting, Drawing, Sculpture (Modeling, Carving, Metal and Plastics), Anatomy, Illustration, Fashion, Graphics, Textile Design, Mural Painting and Commercial Art. Students at the League need never register for a longer period than one month. It is a school run by its students and members; is non-profit, cooperative, and its tuition fees are substantially lower than at other art schools.

Negro Writers: More Accessible

"The Negro Writer in America" is the title of a project completed this summer by Charles James, instructor in English at Dutchess Community College.

James' research, designed to assist high school and two-year college instructors in teaching Negro history and culture, will be used in education courses at the State University at Albany.

Officials in the State Education Department are also considering the manuscript for dissemination throughout New York.

Initiate Billie Joe

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — The Leflore County board of supervisors has had its fill of Billie Joe McAllister.

A new ordinance makes it illegal to jump from the Tallahatchie Bridge—or any other bridge in the county—in imitation of the character in the song, "Ode to Billie Joe." Violation of the ordinance carries a fine of up to $180.

An estimated 40 to 50 youngsters have leaped from the bridge 20 feet above the Tallahatchie River since the song by former Mississippian Bobbie Gentry came out. But unlike Billie Joe, none of the youngsters has met death.

James' report includes a lengthy annotated bibliography of Negro literature: novels, short stories, poetry, and critical essays. He also provides relevant historical information and suggests teaching activities for the instructor.

He has surveyed Negro literature from 1890 through 1952, breaking this period into four subsections so that teachers may consider all or a portion of the subject.

"This project is offered as a positive approach toward establishing a balance of Negro literature with white American literature," James said.

He added that another purpose of his research has been to create a demand from instructors for publishers to reprint significant works that are now available only in somewhat inaccessible collections.
